Ford ponders new agency to fund energy research

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is considering legislation to create an unusual, quasi-public corporation that would funnel up to $100 billion into projects to free the United States from dependence on foreign energy sources, it was learned Friday.

Administration officials said the proposed agency, called the Energy Resources Finance Corp., would be funded by the Treasury Department. They said it would be exempt from taxation, annual congressional review and Civil Service regulations.

Details of the proposal came from Vail, Colo., where Ford is finishing a two-week vacation; from Vice President Nelson Rockefeller at his summer retreat in Seal Harbor, Maine.; and from administration sources in Washington.

"The time has come to consider a major new approach to the energy problem," Rockefeller told a news conference. He said the proposed corporation would provide up to $100 billion to help develop domestic energy sources.

"This corporation is intended to finance the development of new energy sources and then go out of business," one Washington source said. He said the corporation might need to exist for about 10 years.

Asked if it would be difficult to win congressional approval for a project that would be outside the bounds of congressional review, Rockefeller replied: "The President hasn't taken a position on this yet, so it's premature to get beyond his consideration."

Washington officials said Rockefeller and the White House Domestic Council, which he heads, are the proposal's chief backers. The idea of a quasi-public corporation has the hallmarks of bond financing programs that Rockefeller pioneered in New York state.

But Rockefeller, refusing to take credit for the plan, said the legislation is being drafted by the Federal Energy Administration with help from the Domestic Council. He said FEA chief Frank Zarb will present the latest draft of the plan to Ford after the President returns from Vail Tuesday.

"It wasn't my idea," he said. "There are a lot of people working up recommendations for President Ford's return."

At Vail, Colo., White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen confirmed Ford had reviewed the plan. He said the President would make a decision on whether to adopt it after his return to Washington Tuesday.

Nessen said, however, the unusual finance corporation proposal was only one of several ideas under consideration for assuring development of the new energy sources needed to free the United States from its dependence on foreign oil.

"The President is looking at a number of alternatives on ways to stimulate the development of synthetic fuels and to perfect the technology in other methods of producing energy, such as solar," Nessen said.

Administration sources in Washington, who asked not to be identified, said the main backers of the proposed energy finance corporation were Rockefeller and the Domestic Council, which Rockefeller heads.

Scotts must obey grand jury subpoenas

Gov't wins round in Hearst case

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Federal officials on the trail of Patricia Hearst won an important round in U.S. District Court Friday when a judge ordered two key witnesses to obey grand jury subpoenas.

Judge R. Dixon Herman rejected a bid by attorneys for Jack and Micki Scott to quash their subpoenas because of alleged FBI harassment and wiretapping.

The Scotts were expected to appear the week of Sept. 1 before the federal grand jury handling the Hearst case. The couple has repeatedly vowed to remain silent, even though they face jail terms of up to 16 months if they refuse to testify under grants of immunity.

Justice Department officials refused to say if the Scotts will be granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for their testimony.

"But we expect they will be offered immunity," said Margaret Ratner, an attorney for the Scotts. "Why else would they be called to testify?"

Federal agents suspect the Scotts rented a farmhouse in northeastern Pennsylvania which Miss Hearst and other Symbionese Liberation Army fugitives reportedly used as a hideout last summer.

The Scotts could be charged with harboring the fugitives.

In the motion to quash the federal subpoenas, attorney William Kunstler asked for a hearing to air the charges made by the Scotts and their friends against the FBI — a move opposed by the Justice Department because it might be forced to reveal details of its search for Miss Hearst.

Herman said the courts have always given grand juries the widest possible leeway in their investigations. He said the Scotts should file suit or seek an injunction against the FBI if they have a complaint.

Ford advisor claims rise in CPI won't be repeated

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford's chief economic strategist expressed confidence Friday that July's 1.2 per cent jump in the cost of living did not signal the start of a new era of double-digit inflation.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said early data still undisclosed indicated prices would continue climbing this month but that "the July rise will not be repeated or anywhere near it in the month of August."

According to Greenspan, data released earlier this summer predicted the worsening of the Consumer Price Index in July. He said his information for August, including food and gasoline prices, indicates the rate of inflation will drop.

"We have data on retail meat prices which have slowed as have gasoline prices," he said as he prepared to join Ford for a round of golf.

Responding to Agriculture Secretary Earl Buttz comments that the grain sales to the Soviet Union would increase the CPI to 1.5 per cent, Greenspan said the cost of living would rise regardless of the sale.

"One month's changes cannot be attributable to any one major financial force," he said.

"The problem is that food prices like any other prices fluctuate so it is difficult to discuss any particular month's price increase."

Greenspan said the big jump in the cost of living was usually the result of excessive monetary expansion. He said that although he did not expect any dramatic drop in the cost of living, financial projections for the year supported his previous prediction that the American economy was recovering.

"I don't consider any price change minimal but in comparison with the types of figures we've been looking at in recent months even 1.5 per cent spread over a number of months, should it be that way, is considerably less than it has been," he said.

$46 million Kent St. suit finally in hands of jurors

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The $46 million civil damage suit against 29 persons, including the governor of Ohio, arising from the 1970 Kent State University campus shootings went to the jury Friday under tight security and with an admonition from the judge that "sympathy has no place in this lawsuit."

"Not even the highest official in the land is immune...if he knew that his actions violated civil rights," U.S. District Court Judge Donald J. Young told the jury during his complex 76-page charge. "But,"

Young added, "public officials are not liable for damages for honest errors."

The charge included more than 100 variations of findings the jurors might reach.

"You are not partisans, you are judges—judges of the facts," Young told the jurors during the nearly two-hour charge.

Jury members considered the evidence for more than four hours, retiring for the night at 5:45 p.m. (EDT) under guard to the hotel where they are staying.

Deliberations were expected to resume 9 a.m. today.

The jury of six women and six men was instructed to divide the 29 defendants into five groups:

—Gov. James A. Rhodes.

—Former Kent State University president Robert I. White.

—Former state Adj. Gen. Sylvester Del Corso.

—The nine Ohio National Guard officers on the KSU campus at the time of the shootings.

—The 17 enlisted Guardsmen present.

Four Kent State students were killed and nine others wounded when a guard opened fire during an antiwar demonstration on the KSU campus May 4, 1970. The federal damage suit was brought by the parents of the slain students and by the wounded persons.

The jurors heard testimony from nearly 100 witnesses and viewed hundreds of exhibits during the 14-week trial.

The judge, reminding the jurors they could conclude their deliberations when nine of the 12 jurors agreed on a verdict, said there would be a two or three-week delay in assessing money damages if the verdict went against some or all defendants.

He explained there were 13 separate plaintiffs and 29 separate defendants and, with very few exceptions, each plaintiff was suing each defendant for damages.

The tight security was ordered after an unidentified juror reported his or her family had been threatened unless a certain vote was cast. The chief attorney for the plaintiffs also reported during the trial he had been threatened.

The judge read portions of the U.S. Constitution's Fourteenth Amendment dealing with civil rights, Eighth Amendment provisions concerning cruel and unusual punishment without due process of law and Fourth Amendment rights of citizens to be secure in their homes. He also stressed portions of the First Amendment concerning the right of peaceful assembly.

3 persons killed, 20 hurt by bomb in Irish tavern

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A bomb wrecked a Roman Catholic-owned bar in Armagh Friday, causing death and injury among dozens of late-night customers.

Police said three people died in the explosion that destroyed McGleeson's Bar in downtown Armagh, about 40 miles south of Belfast. Approximately twenty others were injured and eight were reported seriously hurt.

Local residents beamed car headlights onto the scene while firemen, police and other rescuers worked to clear the rubble.

"Three bodies have been recovered," a police spokesman at the scene said. "But it may need daylight before we can be certain of the total number of dead."

The explosion in the crowded pub came just before closing time. Police estimated there were approximately 40 people inside at the time.

Witnesses said two teen-aged youths in a maroon car pulled up outside the bar. One of the youths smashed a window with a rock and his accomplice pitched the parcel-size bomb through the hole in the glass, they said.

Goncalves tries new program for Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Communist-backed Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves, in a bid to hold power in Portugal's political crisis, handed the nation a new left-leaning government program Friday designed "to defend the revolution."

Elsewhere, Communists fired into a hostile crowd in northern Portugal and a bomb wrecked a government radio transmitter on the Atlantic island of Madeira.

The government document, running to more than 50 pages, was approved at a cabinet meeting Friday and then presented personally by Gon-calves to President Francisco da Costa Gomes.

Goncalves asserted that if his government were forced from office the country would face the risk of a military coup.

The text of the government program, read on television by Deputy Prime Minister Amaro Metelo, said the government sought the "construction of a socialist society" and the "defense of national independence."

The program, the latest in a long series of documents published by the government and different sections of the country's feuding political and military factions, carried the title "defending the revolution."

Injected paralyzing drug

VA patients' killer hunted

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The FBI has launched a full-scale hunt for a possible psychopath who may have deliberately injected a paralyzing drug into at least 15 patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital, sources at the hospital said Friday.

Two of the patients died.

The hospital has reported a mysterious outbreak of 41 cases of respiratory failure over a 19-day period ending Aug. 15, including eight resulting in death. But the present investigation, officials say, is concentrated on the 15 most suspicious cases.

The sources said 10 more FBI agents joined the investigation Friday, the fifth day of the probe. In Detroit, the FBI refused to confirm or deny reports that it was engaged in a murder investigation.

Hospital officials also refused to comment publicly, referring newsmen to an earlier statement saying the FBI had assumed full jurisdiction in the case. But sources at the facility said the investigation intensified after preliminary laboratory tests showed traces of a suspect drug in the urine of a surviving patient.

In addition, the sources said, earlier information about ages of some of the patients appeared wrong. Hospital spokesmen said earlier that all victims were in their 60s and 70s, but sources said Friday that one victim was 26 with several others in their 40s.

At the only news conference held by hospital officials, they refused to rule out foul play.

"Whether or not a psychopath is involved we don't know," said Dr. Duane Freier, chief of the hospital's medical staff at the Wednesday meeting with newsmen.

The hospital said there has not been a case of respiratory failure since the FBI entered the case early this week.

Frisco fire, police contract draws heat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco supervisors angrily attacked Mayor Joseph L. Alioto Friday for going over their heads to settle a three-day strike, giving both police and firemen a wage package totaling $29,540 a year.

The mayor Thursday declared an emergency, invoked the powers this gave him and signed with striking police and firemen an agreement he had personally hammered out with them in the early morning hours.

Under the settlement provisions, the San Francisco fire chief will make more than California's governor.

The strikers went back to work and by Friday morning both police and fire departments were operating normally.

The supervisors, who unanimously rejected the proposed settlement as too expensive, remained angry with both the mayor and the strikers. They refused to negotiate with "a gun at our heads" until the strikers returned to work or until outside help, such as the California Highway Patrol and state forestry firefighters, were brought in to make the city "safe."

"It's a total capitulation to the people who are supposed to uphold the law and who violated the law," said Diane Feinstein, president of the board.

Nader quits CU board

MT. VERNON, N.Y. — Ralph Nader has resigned from the board of directors of Consumers Union, the publishers of "Consumer Reports," because he feels the organization devotes too little energy to advocacy activities. However, CU Executive Director Rhoda H. Karparkin countered Nader's charges by saying that the organizations "unique contribution to consumer interest" has always been its program of testing products and publishing the results. In his letter of resignation addressed to Colston Warne, president of the CU board, Nader said, "I can better use the 10 days a year which would be spent on CU matters in other pursuits within the consumer movement — more broadly defined."

Rocky having 'great time

SEAL HARBOR, Maine — After almost a year on the job Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said Friday he is not frustrated by being number two and is "having a great time." Rockefeller sat on an old coal wharf near his coastal retreat and chatted casually with reporters before hosting a $300-a-couple fund raising cocktail party for the Maine State Republican Committee. "I'm having a great time," he said. "Everybody likes to think I've been frustrated, but the truth of the matter is, I haven't been. I was delighted to go to Washington because that's where the decisions are being made that affect the people of this country at a very crucial time," he said.

Pot haul largest in history

WASHINGTON — The $23.8 million cache of marijuana discovered last week in the Bahamas was the largest such seizure in history, customs officials said Friday. The 1,049 sacks of high grade Columbian weed, found by U.S. Customs Service helicopter pilots Aug. 16, were officially weighed at 86,280 pounds — slightly more than 43 tons — before they were burned at Pompano Beach, Fla., Thursday. Officials estimated that on the illicit market the marijuana was worth $23.8 million. Previously, the largest recorded seizure of marijuana was the 42 tons found in the Mexicali-Calexico area on the U.S.-Mexican border June 23, 1974. Before that, 28 tons had been seized at Culican, Mexico, in March, 1973.

Gulf calls off merger talks

PITTSBURGH — Gulf Oil Corp. said Friday it has called off merger talks with Rockwell International Corp. The company said Willard F. Rockwell Jr., chairman of Rockwell, no longer was interested in a merger. Rockwell had said that instead of a merger he would welcome an investment of about $200 million from Gulf. "Gulf's primary interest was in exploring the prospect of a merger and Mr. Rockwell has made it clear to us that he is no longer interested in considering a merger," Gulf senior vice president Juergen Ladendorf said. "We respect his position."

Rockwell assassin paroled

RADFORD, Va. — John Patler, convicted assassin of American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell, was paroled today after serving eight years of his 20 year sentence. A spokesman for the Virginia Corrections Department said Patler, 37, was released from the Pulaski Correctional Unit in Southwest Virginia this morning. He has been described by a probation officer as a model prisoner who never caused any disturbances or trouble. The corrections spokesman said Patler would be assigned a parole officer in Roanoke. The parole was approved earlier this year. Patler was convicted of killing Rockwell in Virginia in 1967 after being expelled from the party because of doctrinal differences.

Relax, Elvis fans

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Singer Elvis Presley, who canceled a Las Vegas engagement and was hospitalized because of fatigue, has no "serious or life-threatening illness," his personal physician said Friday. "He had a good night's sleep and is feeling great this morning," said Dr. George Nichopoulos. Presley cut short a scheduled two-week Las Vegas engagement Wednesday at the suggestion of his doctors and flew back to Memphis for a checkup.

Hoffa jury grasps at straws

DETROIT — A grand jury probe into the disappearance of James R. Hoffa will begin early next month, but officials speculate little information will be uncovered about the fate of the once-powerful labor leader. Federal authorities said Friday the grand jury inquiry may be a last-ditch move toward progress in solving the baffling disappearance of Hoffa, who vanished from the parking lot of a suburban Detroit restaurant July 30. FBI agents and state authorities have turned up few leads in the case and they have almost no real evidence on the former Teamsters Union president's fate. "All we really know for sure," said one federal investigator, "is that Hoffa has disappeared."

NASA study urges floating space colony

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — A floating space city for 10,000 persons, with shops, schools, industry and agriculture, could be built in the moon's orbit, 240,000 miles from earth, a NASA-Stanford University study team reported Friday.

The team recommended the United States move toward setting up such a colony as "a basic step in expanding habitation of the universe."

The price tag on the mile-wide, wheel-shaped habitat would be about $100 billion, or two to three times the cost of the Apollo Project, the 28-member group said.

No fundamental scientific obstacles were found, and the group said such a space colony would be a source of solar power earth eventually paying for its own cost.

By rotating once a minute, the structure would gain enough centrifugal force to simulate a person's normal weight on earth.

The business of the artificial planet would be to operate satellites gathering sunlight to generate power. It would be sent by microwave to earth where it could be converted to electricity.

The process could be cheaper than nuclear fission power plants, man's present hope for energy at the turn of the century.

Using the abundant solar energy of space, the colony also would process minerals transported from the moon, and manufacture other space colonies.

Millions of tons of raw material, equipment and supplies could be carried to the colony by space shuttles derived from NASA's current shuttle program. Heavy industry would be set up outside the city where the weightlessness and high vacuum of space could be used to advantage.

Food to support the colony of 10,000 would come from grains and other plants growing fast in special habitats with sunlight 24 hours a day.

The study assumed a population comparable to any earth city, including children and elderly as well as those of prime working age. Eventually, it was expected that some degree of self-government would emerge.

White House gets break on subpoenas for tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate intelligence committee has given the White House an extension until next Wednesday to answer subpoenas demanding tapes and documents from the Nixon administration, congressional sources said Friday.

The panel, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, issued two subpoenas Aug. 12 demanding production of the material under White House control by 9 a.m. Monday.

The subpoenas were served on White House Counsel Philip Buchen and Arthur J. Sampson, administrator of the General Services Administration.

Under a court order, they have legal custody of former President Richard M. Nixon's files, which Nixon is also trying to possess through court action.

Congressional sources said Friday that the subpoena deadline has been extended until next Wednesday since the White House has gone to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals asking if the requested material can be turned over to the Senate Committee.

The documents Church wants refer to a massive White House-conceived "dirty tricks" operation — never fully implemented — against American dissidents and decision papers concerning U.S. intelligence operations in Chile.

"These papers are extremely relevant to the investigation," Church said, adding the committee would go to court if necessary to get them.

With word that the White House itself was going to court in an attempt to lift an embargo on the papers, the Senate panel is willing to wait a few more days, the sources said.

Meanwhile, committee staff members were putting the finishing touches on a report on investigations into allegations that the CIA engaged in assassination plots of foreign leaders.

The names of several foreign leaders have been mentioned in alleged assassination plots, including unsuccessful attempts against Fidel Castro of Cuba; plots against Dominican Dictator Rafael Trujillo, who was assassinated in 1961; South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, killed in a coup in Saigon in 1963; Chilean Arm chief of Staff Gen. Rene Schneider, slain in 1970; and Chilean Marxist President Salvador Allende, who died in a coup in 1973.

jolting Kissinger's shuttle mission.

Kissinger plans to visit both countries in the next few days and is expected to seek clarifications on the joint declaration.

Sadat and Kissinger embraced each other warmly, their heads touching cheeks in a greeting as old as this city of Alexander the Great.

The secretary of state then turned to reporters and said, "I have the impression that progress is being made."

Sadat said he was "always optimistic." But he obviously wanted the reporters to leave their meeting spot on lawn chairs at his Maamoura Palace.

"I haven't had any conversations with my friend Henry yet," he said.

"I am hopeful," Kissinger said. "I have the impression there is a gap but it is narrowing."

The two men met for two hours and 45 minutes and afterwards the Egyptian president said there had been "some progress, but some problems remain."

Kissinger is expected to meet with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismael Fahmy today and again with Sadat on Sunday.

From Jerusalem he brought Rabin's terms for a pact Kissinger sees as the cornerstone of a Middle East peace. Some differences remained but Kissinger was urging both sides closer to agreement.

Kissinger optimistic about Mideast peace

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, fresh from talks in Israel, threw his arms around Egypt's President Anwar Sadat Friday and said progress was being made toward a new Israeli-Egyptian peace pact designed to thwart a new Middle East war.

On the first day of his latest diplomatic shuttle, Kissinger spent five hours conferring in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and then flew to Sadat's summer capital on the Mediterranean.

Two of Egypt's Arab partners, Syria and Jordan, meanwhile, announced the formation of a joint military command and rejected any partial peace settlement with Israel, severely

U.S. pledges defense aid to Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The United States has pledged aid to Israel if it is attacked by a major world power such as the Soviet Union, although the pledge is not strictly a defense pact, government sources said Friday.

"It's something good for Israel to have," the sources said.

The pledge is contained in the U.S.-Israeli section of the second interim peace agreement with Egypt. It is the same section in which the United States has promised to give Israel $2 billion in economic aid, guaranteed oil supplies and weapons.

The pledge does not commit the United States to come to Israel's aid immediately if it is attacked by a major power, the sources said.

"It is not an automatic decision but a decision to go into consultations on the form of the aid," they said. "It is not a defense pact."

40,000 miners join coal strike

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Nearly 40,000 men in four states were off the job Friday in a coal miners strike that started as a minor local dispute two weeks ago and grew into a major protest against the United Mine Workers leadership, The strike, which began in West Virginia, also has taken miners out of the pits in eastern Kentucky, southeastern Ohio and southwestern Virginia.

Jack Perry, president of UMW District 17, went into the West Virginia coalfields to try persuade miners to return to their jobs by Sunday midnight.

Other union representatives followed his lead. However, in Charleston, where Perry is based, a group of miners picketed the Federal Court Building with signs saying, "We demand the right to strike," and called for removal of all court injunctions and penalties against the strikers.

The miners said they felt the court had improperly interfered in a labor dispute by issuing restraining orders and injunctions, jailing one striker and fining UMW locals. They also complained about slowness in getting a new minefield grievance procedure started.

The strike, which industry officials said caused a coal production loss of 300,000 tons a day, paralyzed southern West Virginia mining operations.

Postal contract may hike rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's largest postal union voted strongly Friday to accept a three-year contract with the U.S. Postal Service that could bring on the 13-cent postal rate, but a final count was at least a day away.

With 160,000 ballots to count, the vote was about 28,000 yes to 8,000 no, according to Francis Filbey, president of the American Postal Workers Union. Filbey said 250,000 union members had been eligible to vote.

Filbey said the final count would be reached tonight.

The pact has been ratified by the National Association of Letter Carriers, and the National Rural Letter Carriers Association. The 47,000-member Mailhandlers Division of the Laborers International Union is considering it.

The Postal Service reached tentative agreement July 21 with the four postal unions, averting a national mail strike. The agreement provides for pay raises totaling $1,500 over the three years of the contract, cost-of-living increases and the government's pledge to lay off nobody.

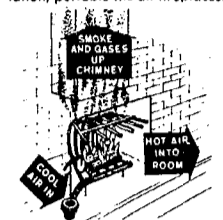

Filbey and Letter Carriers President James H. Rademach-

er agreed Thursday that the no-layoff clause — in effect guaranteeing job security — was the most important feature of the new contract. Filbey made the point of its value "in view of the plight" of the Postal Service.

Buck pass reaches grass roots

By NORMAN B. LEHDE
Somehow, the conversation turned to the subject of government, local and otherwise.

"Don't you agree the only government should be the grass roots kind?"

"Suppose the grass is a little too green?"

"There are no situations that cannot be handled best on a local level."

"Did you ever try to give your brother-in-law a parking ticket?"

"Don't you believe there should be local committees to throw undesirable books out of schools and libraries?"

"I would rather see books to throw out undesirable local committees."

"Don't you believe all pornography should be burned?"

"Why, because it's hot stuff? Ha-ha."

"Very funny. Don't you know these books are written to destroy America?"

"I suspect they are written for money and published for profit under the capitalist system."

"Are you trying to confuse me?"

"I believe that happened before we started this conversation. Don't you believe there are many times when local officials welcome state and federal rules and regulations because they aid them in accomplishing something they know needs to be done?"

"Why didn't they do it themselves?"

"Because sometimes it takes awhile for an idea to penetrate and if the idea is completely new it takes longer. Remember, years ago, when one of the townships passed a junk car ordinance and when the residents got all shook up about it, two of the supervisors met and declared they didn't know how the ordinance came into being but that it must have been the work of the guy who was absent?"

"So you think local officials should pass everything on to the state or federal government?"

"Not at all. Because the oftener they pass the buck the more often the buck is going to end up in Harrisburg or Washington and the more the buck is in those cities the more agencies will be created to take care of it."

"What are you advocating anyway?"

"That more than one method is needed to combat both selfish interests and bureaucratic pomposity."

"You're making my head ache. Let's go outside and watch the trucks go by."

Area artist selected for fair

EAST STROUDSBURG — Thomas Mann of 35 Washington St., East Stroudsburg has been accepted as a participant in the 1975 Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. This is the 16th annual art fair held on South and East University in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Mann was among 1,000 persons who applied for the 1975 fair and submitted color slides of their work. The jury is highly selective, since only 325 arts and crafts people can be accepted.

The fair will be held July 16, 17, 18 and 19 in Ann Arbor. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Blue Valley blooms today

By BRUCE POSTEN

Pocono Record Reporter
BANGOR — Flowers bloomed in catcher's mitts, sprouted from tennis ball cans and twined around miniature football goals at the Blue Valley Farm Show.

But sports was only one of several themes for floral arrangements at the fair. Floral displays also emphasized themes of industry, carpentry, farming and labor.

Judges Mrs. Heber Trach, Mrs. Floyd Knauss, Mrs. Forest Eyer and Mrs. Leonard Van Horne worked throughout the day to tag winners for today's floral exhibition.

Mrs. Ralph Lichtenwelter of Nazareth was named best in the show with two first place floral arrangements based on "athletic" and "farming" themes. Mrs. Lichtenwelter also won a second and third place in the floral arrangement division with two other exhibits.

Lucille Smolenyak of Pen Argyl was the first runner-up in the floral arrangement division with two first place entries entitled "Homemaking" and "Just Me."

Mrs. Smolenyak was also awarded two second place ribbons.

Other top winners in the floral arrangement division were: Nadine Mutton, Pen Argyl, a first and second place ribbon; Tammy Mutton, Pen Argyl, a second place ribbon.

In the flowering house plants division, Elma Good of Bangor was named best in the show, while Gayle Mutton of Pen Argyl was the first-runner-up.

Mrs. Good won a first place for her wax begonias (single) and Mrs. Mutton placed first with her African violets (double).

In the same division, Janet Crusman of Tatamy won a first place for her African violets (single) and Carl Hummer of Bangor took first with his wax begonias (double). Gloria Buzzard of Bangor had first prize geraniums and Jean Udall of Bangor was given a first place for miscellaneous.

Jean Udall was best in show in the foliage plants division and Olive Ashman was first runner-up.

Other winners who received first place ribbons were: Mrs. Ralph Lichtenwelter, Nazareth, begonias; Hazel LaBarre, Bangor, coleus; Rose Carrescia, Roseto, espica (anyleat); Olive Ashman, Pen Argyl, ferns; Ruth Bisber, Bangor, potted ivy and Elma Good, Bangor, miscellaneous plant.

Jan Borger of Ackermanville was named best in the show in the annuals division of the flower competition and Floyd Breidinger of Plainfield Township was the runner-up.

Breidinger won first place for his plumes, cactus, gladiolus (small flowering), marigolds (African lemon and African orange).

He won two second place ribbons in the division and a third place award for decorative dahlias.

Mrs. Borger captured several second place ribbons in the division for African orange marigolds and small flowering gladiolus.

She also won a third place for astors and a third place for African lemon marigolds.

Other first place winners were:

Donna Stone, Bangor, asters; Grace Humphrey, Plainfield Township, cresset; Elma Good, Bangor, cosmos; Dick Mutton, Pen Argyl, decorative dahlias, three-bloom pompon and three-bloom single pompon.

Also, Floyd Breidinger, Plainfield Township, French (single); Velma Martin, Bangor, French (double); Lucille Smolenyak, Pen Argyl, petunias (single); Mrs. Ralph Fichten, Nazareth (double); John Ashman, Pen Argyl, snapdragons; Frances Poliskiewicz, Bangor, strawflowers and Jean Barger, Ackermanville, cactus blooms.

Also, A. Smolenyak, Pen Argyl, giant blooms; Floyd Breidinger, Plainfield Township, pompon blooms and novelty blooms.

And Olive Ashman, Pen Argyl, gloriosa daisy; Mrs. Ralph Lichtenwelter, Nazareth, miscellaneous and Olive Ashman, Pen Argyl, ageratum.

In the perennial division the best of show was Richard Mutton, Pen Argyl, and the first runner-up was Joe Falcinelli, East Bangor.

Mutton won second place ribbons for his roses and grandiflora.

Other first place winners were: E.H. Borger, Ackermanville, chrysanthemums; Jean Borger, Ackermanville, delphiniums; Gayle Mutton, Pen Argyl, roses; Elva Hatter, Bangor, lillie and Jean Borger, Ackermanville, miscellaneous roses and perennials.

Recycling scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — The paper and glass recycling center of Boy Scout Troop 81 of East Stroudsburg has been moved from Day Street to N. Kistler Street.

Scoutmaster Richard Parton said many papers are still being left at the old location when they should be put in a trailer on N. Kistler near Lackawanna Avenue. Glass for recycling should be left in the shed next to the paper trailer, Parton said.

Britain: A model study of how not to run a country

Dow Jones-Ottawa News Service

Hardly anyone needs to be told now that Great Britain is the sick country of Europe. Everywhere you look the evidence abounds.

The standard of living of its people is lower than comparable countries in Europe, vastly lower than in the U.S. And it is a shrinking standard of living for all, peer and ploughman.

It is all very curious. For Britain has not been brought to this estate by defeat in war, by earthquakes, plagues, droughts or any natural disasters.

Britain's undoing is its own doing. It has been brought to this by the calculated policies of its government and by their resigned acceptance by the people.

Thus, Britain for those who would learn from it, offers a model study in how to bring to ruin a once vigorous nation.

The formula is simple. You begin by putting upon a nation an economic burden it cannot bear.

In Britain's case it was an all-encompassing welfare program. Its best known example is the free medical program but there is also subsidized housing, subsidized food, subsidized transportation and an elaborate system of other generous welfare programs.

One way or another all this must be paid for. This means either higher taxes or a resort to the government printing presses to create money, or both.

VERMONT ROYSTER

The government-printed money causes inflation which increased the cost of everything, including the welfare program, which in turn calls for more printed money, accelerating the inflation. The higher taxes are needed not only to help pay the costs but to "sop up" the excesses of inflation.

This becomes a vicious circle. Today the ordinary income tax hits a 50 per cent rate around the equivalent of $15,000, rising steeply thereafter. In practical terms the upper limit of a salaried income, after taxes, is about $25,000. And of course as inflation increases, the purchasing power of all wages and salaries decreases.

Nor is this the end of taxation. There is a value-added tax (a kind of sales tax) levied on what you spend of what's left: it's 8 per cent on nearly everything, 25 per cent on many items.

Again, the inflation, by increasing the price of goods, in effect also increases the real cost of the vat on every purchase. On top of all this there are property taxes (paid in Britain by the renter) which have risen 30 per cent to 60 per cent in the past year alone.

No one escapes. Those in strong labor unions who can demand wage increases of 30 per cent or more may have the illusion at first of keeping up.

In fact they rarely do because they enter new tax brackets and because, as happened this spring, the government raises vat rates to offset the wage raises. Those not in strong unions are worse off.

Meanwhile, the middle class is being effectively destroyed, not only by the inflation and steeply progressive taxes but by other measures designed just for that purpose — confiscatory inheritance taxes and, more lately, by an outright "wealth" tax. This is not a tax on what you earn or spend but a capital levy on what you have left, if anything.

The economic effects of this are far-reaching. For example, in that progressive income tax there is a special rate for investment income which climbs as high as 98 per cent. Thus, those who would normally save, and invest in British industry are squeezed at both ends.

It is harder and harder for them to save and if they do they are discouraged from investing because of the penalty tax on investment income.

The solution proposed is for the British treasury to supply the investment. British Leyland, the automaker, is the most recent example. But this adds further to the long list of industries to be subsidized which in turn adds to the pressure for more taxes or more inflation.

Spend and spend, tax and tax. Inflate and inflate. It's not only a clear formula for wrecking an economy but also for assuring that out of the wreckage comes a total socialist state.

Reduce people to the point where they cannot care for their own needs, the state must. Reduce industry to the point where it cannot provide its own capital, the state must.

But intended or not, Britain today offers a textbook case on how to run a country — a sobering model, too, for any visitor who tarries there awhile and returns home wondering if he has seen the future.

Meany forces some answers

Crusty old George Meany, the big boss of American labor, has gotten his way. President Gerald Ford has given in to Meany's demand that the administration meet with him and other labor officials to discuss the shipment of grain to Russia.

If you will remember, Meany pulled the dock workers off their jobs in protest of the sale, all the while demanding assurances from Ford and his administration that the sale will not result in higher food costs to Americans. If Meany doesn't get those assurances, there is no doubt that Russia will have more than a little trouble getting all of the wheat it purchased.

The President knows that Meany means business. Mr. Ford called Meany, not the other way around, to participate in negotiations over the matter. Mr. Ford knows that Meany is not a man to be trifled with, and that Mr. Meany can sometimes live up to his name, as far as presidents are concerned.

Thus we have the negotiations. That President Ford is hoping to cool down the situation is evident. And by having Meany on the other side of the table is the first step toward bringing calm to the dispute.

But we wonder if the President can actually give Meany the assurances the big labor leader wants. We also wonder about the wisdom of the sale, and Mr. Ford's subsequent statements about selling even more wheat to the Russians.

Ford's agriculture secretary, Earl Butz, hasn't been too successful in assuring the American people about much of anything. Before Meany called his dock workers off their jobs, he publicly demanded assurances about future food prices in light of the wheat sale. When he didn't get any, he took the action which he deemed necessary to get some answers.

We too are interested in how future food prices will be affected by the wheat deal. We also are curious to know why the American public can't get answers about this important economic question. With food prices as they stand today, with prices on everything else as they stand today, we are concerned about the future.

In the past we have not always agreed with George Meany's actions and positions, and we will not agree with him in the future.

But at least this time, Meany has done something we can agree with. He has taken the first step in forcing some answers out of the Vail White House.

"Food prices are ridiculous," the city dweller told the farmer. "Never have farm products cost so much."

"You're right," agreed the farmer. "But understand: when a farmer is supposed to know the botanical names of what he's raising, and the entomological name of the insect that eats it, and the pharmaceutical name of the chemical that kills it, somebody's got to pay for that education."

The Money Book: Where to find training for jobs

(Eighteenth of 21 columns)

The range of job training opportunities in the United States today is broad and attractive — and in many cases the training is accompanied by very respectable pay checks.

Where will you find these opportunities?

Consider one of the oldest (at least 4,000 years) — but once again rapidly growing — ways to acquire important job skills: apprenticeship. This type of training is open to women as well as men; hundreds of women, in fact, are now being trained in fields ranging from plumbing to aircraft mechanics, fire fighting, machining, sheet-metal work, carpentry, pipe fitting, shoe repair, jet engine assembly, cheese making, embalming, computer repair, and even as purser-pharmacist mates on ocean-going vessels. Hundreds of thousands of apprentices are being trained each year in more than 350 trades ranging from stained-glass window making to musical-instrument repair, photography, and leather working.

As a general rule, apprentice-training programs run two to five years. You, the apprentice, learn on the job, under the guidance of an experienced craftsman who probably was an apprentice himself some years ago. You also may spend a few hours a week in a classroom: technical instruction will be an important part of your apprenticeship.

Apprenticeship programs are generally a joint labor-management effort and generally are registered with the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, or with your state's apprenticeship agency. Such programs are open to you if you are a man or woman of legal working age.

Your best local sources of information on apprenticeship programs available in your area are: the local AFL-CIO building and construction trades council; the Urban League; the Recruitment Training Program, Inc.; the Apprenticeship Information Center at your local state Employment Service office; the state's apprenticeship agency; a corporation employing workers in your field of interest; the union which represents the trade in which you are interested.

In addition there are pre-apprenticeship programs, backed by the federal government and geared to meet the needs of those whose qualifications are insufficient to get them into formal apprenticeship programs. These consist of a combination of work training, tutoring and classroom instruction.

Normally, starting apprentices earn 40 to 50 per cent of the going pay to journeymen (journeymen are those who have satisfactorily completed apprenticeship training.) Apprentices also normally are granted pay raises every six months until the end of the training period when the pay scales reach 90 per cent of the current rate paid to journeymen. In addition, there may be valuable fringe benefits — including paid vacations and holidays, health insurance, pension plans.

Here is a typical pay ladder for an apprentice who has chosen a trade in which the going rate for skilled workers is $5.00 an hour — after four years of apprenticeship.

For the first six months the pay is $2.50 an hour, increasing to $2.80 for next six months, to $3.10 for third six months, to $3.40 for fourth six months, to $3.70 for fifth six months, to $4.00 for sixth six months, to $4.30 for seventh six-month period, and to $4.50 for the eighth six-month period.

Moreover, if you are a veteran who is eligible for benefits under the Veterans Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1966 and amendments, you will receive from the VA starting monthly training allowances, the size of which will depend on your number of dependents. This allowance decreases as the apprenticeship period progresses — but the sums you receive are over and above the amounts you receive from your employer.

Apprenticeship is only one of many difference forms of job training available today. Another is on-the-job "vestibule" training. You work at the employer's place of business, under the guidance of experienced workers, foremen, or instructors.

Normally, your training period will range from one month to two years. Normally, also, you will receive an allowance which is below going pay scales for skilled workers in your field but still adequate to support you until you have completed the training period. For information on training programs available to you in your field, ask major employers in your area and also the local office of the U.S. Employment Service.

Letters to the Editor

Ham operator finds fault with story on CB radios

Editor, The Record:

This is in reference to the story "Trucker's strike key factor in Citizens Band boom," in The Pocono Record, (Aug. 7).

The man who taught me the basics of good reporting told me to always attribute a statement to someone. The sixth paragraph in John Ryan's story is written as "The Truth," in black and white, attributing the statement to no one. It says:

"In economy and flexibility, CB outstrips other two-way systems. Amateur, or 'ham' radio covers vast distances but costs far more (about $700 to get started), requires passing a difficult examination and cannot be used for business."

The entire paragraph is erroneous.

CB outstrips other two-way systems in sheer numbers of operators and dollars spent, according to industry statistics, but its "economy and flexibility" cannot be compared to another radio service whose purpose and rule structure is different.

Amateur Radio does not just cover "vast distances." Depending on the frequency, power, time of day, and propagation conditions, as well as the mode of operation, hams may communicate in local or distant contacts, or anything in between.

Hams can get "on the air" for far less than the $700 figure in Ryan's story. I did. Just check the advertisers in any amateur radio publication. Then look at the want-ad section in the same magazine. There is a wealth of good used equipment and antennas which can be purchased for less than $200.

Getting a ham license "requires passing a difficult examination," says Ryan. The fact is, there is more than one class of ham license, and a different examination for each one.

The Novice Class license, according to The Radio Amateur's License Manual, "offers an ideal way to get started in amateur radio — reduced code speed and simplified written examination." I passed it when I was 14 years old. According to How to Become a Radio Amateur, "Boys and girls of 8 and 10 have become amateurs — as have men of 80."

In early summer, a group of youngsters 15 years and under, participating in an amateur radio course sponsored by the U.S. Army Reserve at East Stroudsburg State College, spent only two weeks on campus. At the end of that period, 22 were licensed as amateur radio operators, according to their instructor.

Amateur radio "cannot be used for business" says the article. So what? Part 97 of the Federal Communication Commission Amateur Regulations defines an amateur radio operator as "A person interested in radio technique solely with a personal aim and without pecuniary interest, holding a valid Federal Communications Commission license to operate amateur radio stations." CB's purpose is different, and so are the rules and regulations. It is a matter of freedom of choice, not which service is better.

Inaccuracies in reporting in the media about hams and CB'ers are the prime cause of hard feelings between the two groups and between the radio operators and the public.

Ryan should have quoted his source, or researched his information.

My quotes above come from publications of The American Radio Relay League, Inc., Newington, Conn. For more information on Amateur Radio, write to the League, or ask any ham.

Final tribute paid to firemen
House to decide legislator's fate

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Final tribute was paid Friday to six dead firemen while the blaze that killed them last Sunday continue to burn and occasionally flare up in the Gulf Oil Co. refinery in south Philadelphia.

Two Masses of Resurrection were celebrated for the six who were killed last Sunday when they were trapped in flames which erupted from a blanket of foam at the refinery.

The victims had been conducting mopping up operations from an original six-alarm fire when the second blaze broke out, touching off an 11-alarm fire.

John Cardinal Krol, archbishop of Philadelphia, conducted one mass at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in the downtown section of the city for five of the victims. Firemen Hugh McIntyre, 53, Joseph Wiley, 33, Roger Parker, 28, John Andrews, 49, and Ralph Campana, 41.

A separate mass was conducted for Fireman Robert Fisher, 43, at his parish church in the Kensington section of the city.

Ironically, shortly before the services started, the fire still burning in the original crude oil tank where the multiple alarm blazes began flared up briefly, prompting additional equipment to be rushed in for a brief time.

In the crowded cathedral, Cardinal Krol, assisted in the mass by the five pastors from the victims' parishes, said the victims "did not regard themselves as heroes" but were "dedicated to protecting our lives, limb and property."

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania House will return next week to decide the fate of Rep. Leonard Sweeney, the Pittsburgh Democrat convicted of federal mail fraud for his involvement in a phony accident ring.

House Speaker Herbert Fineman called the special session for Wednesday after he received affirmative replies from more than 102 members to a letter he sent this week asking if the House should return.

Fifty legislators have sponsored a resolution to expel Sweeney and to call a special election to fill his seat.

The House originally was not scheduled to return until Sept. 22, but a vote to expel on that day would have delayed the special election until next spring. If Sweeney is expelled next week, the election to fill his seat can be held in November.

Neither Fineman nor Sweeney were available for comment Friday. However, a Democratic spokesman said Sweeney has told friends that he is in a "fighting mood" and has no intention of resigning his seat.

Sweeney, 32, is a freshman legislator. He was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $3,000 for his role in the accident ring.

At first, he indicated he would resign his House seat, but later asked for a leave of absence pending an appeal of his three-count conviction.

There are indications the House will provide the 136 votes

— the two-thirds majority required by the state Constitution — to expel the Pittsburgh Democrat.

The Pittsburgh Press reported Thursday that 13 Allegheny County legislators favored expulsion of Sweeney. Several cited a section of the Constitution which forbids convicted felons to hold public office.

The expulsion resolution is co-sponsored by Rep. A. Joseph Valicenti, a Democratic colleague of Sweeney's from Allegheny County.

Fineman sent his letter to all House members on Monday after the resolution was introduced. He gave them seven days to reply.

However, by Friday he had replies from more than 102 members to call the special session.

Ann Landers

Cleaning house

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to respond to that male chauvinist who wrote, "American women are the filthiest housekeepers in the world." He closed with this gem: "I hope somewhere there's a mother who is teaching her daughter the beauty of a clean home."

Strange how many men seem to think that only a wife should clean the house. I believe if two people live together, they should BOTH help keep the place clean since both of them are dirtying it up.

Now that nearly 40 per cent of the country's work force is female, men ought to realize they have a responsibility to pitch in and do their share at home. It's also time fathers taught their sons the beauty of a clean home.

No Maid Service In Austin
Dear No Maid: Take that and that that, you lazy, good-for-nothin' husbands with working wives! The Little Woman who is slugging it out in the asphalt jungle deserves a lift with the household chores. So get off your piazzas and pitch in!

Dear Ann Landers: I am sending you something that was written by Ruth J. Reynolds at the University of Missouri Extension Center. I hope you will print it, because she says something that needs to be understood by parents and children everywhere. Here is it:

PARENTS ARE PEOPLE

Parents are people who were once children — children who got a fair shake or a bad break from their parents.

Parents get confused by all the information and misinformation they receive from too many professionals.

Parents have their own needs, which may not have been satisfied by their parents, by society, their environment or their education.

Parents would like their children to have the best in education, looks, intellect, friends, food, clothing and success.

Parents feel guilty when their children don't have the best and don't measure up to their expectations.

Some parents may have to raise a child by themselves, without help from a mate. It's not easy. Most parents do the best they can with the knowledge they have the support society provides, even though they themselves may suffer from unfulfilled needs, frustration and disappointment.

Parents need empathy and encouragement from each other, from their children, friends, teachers, doctors and other professionals.

Before we say, "It's the parents' fault," we should stop and think that if we had borne that particular child, under the same set of circumstances, if we had that parent's background — then but for the grace of God we might BE that parent.

Sent By A Friend

Dear Friend: My thanks to you and Ruth J. Reynolds. She makes some excellent points. I applaud her keen insight, compassion and understanding.

Dear Ann: I read that letter from the 20-year-old boy who forged his parents' signature and emptied a savings account of $2,500. Your advice was, "Get the boy into therapy."

It doesn't always work. Our son is 17 and we've been trying since he was 13 — spent a small fortune on psychiatrists and psychologists for both him and ourselves. He simply won't cooperate.

The moment a therapist gets close to his problems, the boy refuses to see him again.

We put him in a private hospital. He ran away. When he lived at home he was so hot-tempered we were afraid to leave him with his little sister. We'd give anything if we could help this tortured boy, but how? Only he can help himself and he doesn't want to. Any advice for us?

Still Love Him

Dear Friends: The key can be found in your letter — it's the second from the last sentence.

When the boy becomes of legal age tell him he's on his own — that you will pay for his education or therapy if he wants it but you refuse to bail him out of trouble. Then keep your word. Perhaps when he no longer has you to lean on (and punish) he'll shape up and accept responsibility for himself. Let's hope so.

Baby problem

By Jean Adams

UNTOLD STORY: (Q.) Last year I ran away and got pregnant. I had the baby two months ago. Then I came home and everything's going smoothly, except for one thing. I left my baby girl with a close friend.

I know if I even mentioned the word "pregnant" to my parents they would kill me. I don't want to put the baby up for adoption. I want it back. My friend called me yesterday and said she can't keep it much longer. Please help me.

we broke up about four weeks ago. I begged him to come back, but he just doesn't care anymore.

I said I was going to sit home and pray every night for him to come back to me. I did take my friends' advice and went out with one guy. But I can't forget Jon and I don't want to. I can't live without him. Please understand and help me, because Jon doesn't. How can you forget someone you love? —

Going Crazy

(A.) You won't go crazy. You can live without Jon, and you will. This happened to millions of girls, and they have gone ahead, found new boy friends and lived good, full lives. Get to work finding a new boy friend, and a new life, now.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

You don't have to be a great mathematician to be a good card player. All you need is the ability to count to 13.

Consider this deal where West leads the Q-J of hearts, which hold, and shifts to a low spade. It is surely reasonable for declarer to conclude at this stage that West started with two hearts, neither more nor less.

South wins East's jack of spades with the ace and plays a diamond to the queen. East takes the ace and returns a heart to declarer's ace. West discarding a spade.

When South plays a diamond to the king, West discards a club. Declarer does not actually see West's hand at this point, but it is nonetheless clear that West, who started with two hearts and one diamond, probably had five spades and five clubs, judging from his two discards.

South confirms West's 5-2-1-5 distribution by cashing the K-Q of spades. East showing out. Declarer's proper continuation is now clear-cut. He has an endplay in the making that absolutely guarantees four club tricks and the contract.

South cashes the queen of clubs and exits from dummy with a spade, forcing West to win with the ten.

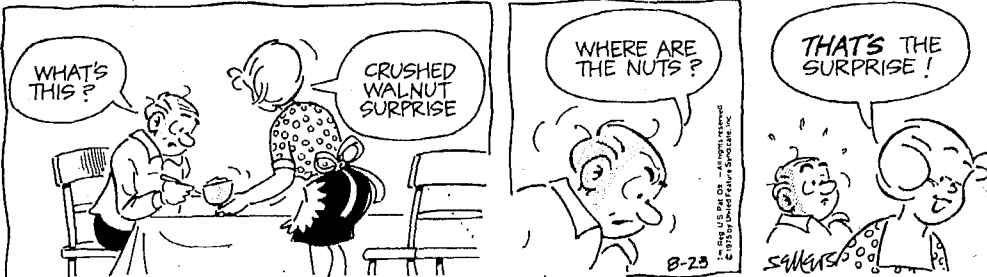

West's last three cards are the J-9-8 of clubs and he is forced to return one to South's A-K-10, thus putting an end to the battle.

It is true that declarer had to use some arithmetic as the play of the hand progressed, but at no point did any of his calculations go past the number 13.

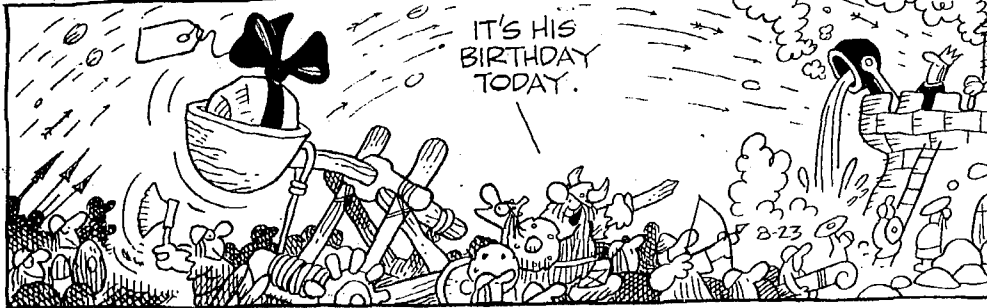

This process of counting out a hand can be extremely profitable if a player is willing to go through the rigmarole of adding and subtracting various numbers, but it has one serious drawback. It takes all the guess out of the game!

WHEELS AND DEALS — Motorcycles and marriage come to the fore in a special two-part presentation of "Happy Days" on the ABC Television Network Tuesday from 8 to 9 p.m. when "Cruisin'" and "Fonzie's Gettin' Married" team up. Here Ron Howard, starred as Richie Cunningham, offers his letter sweater to Debbra Lee Maly, a former Miss America Teenager. At right, Fonzie (Henry Winkler) tells the guys at Arnold's Drive-In about his intended bride in Fonzie's Gettin' Married.

'Troubled times'
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Don Murray will star in "Troubled Times" for Ayco-Embassy.

BRODHEADSVILLE — Shann Lavin Fenner and John Katchmir were married on Saturday, Aug. 9, at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church in Brodheadsville. The ceremony was performed by Father Gibson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weston Fenner, Jr., Brodheadsville.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Katchmir, Orwigsburg.

Miss Sandy Keiper was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were: Misses Kellie Fenner, Lori Fenner, Hilary Fenner, and Mrs. Gae Castellana, all sisters of the bride, and Miss Melissa Reidenbaugh, Syracuse, N.Y.

Fredrick Schmerring, Orwigsburg, was best man. Ushers were: Joseph Oniskanich and Brian Schwartz, Orwigsburg; Bruce Strausburger, Brodheadsville; and Joseph Mall, St. Claire.

A reception, following the ceremony, was held at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Molly Fenner.

The couple took a wedding trip to the New England states. They will make their home in Orwigsburg.

The bride is a graduate of Pleasant Valley High School and works as a waitress at Dusselink Restaurant, Orwigsburg.

The groom is a graduate of Blue Mountain High School and studied at Penn State University. He now works as a carpenter in Orwigsburg.

Shapp proclaims Monday equal rights day in state

HARRISBURG — August 28 marks the fifty-fifth anniversary of women's right to vote in America. In Pennsylvania, Governor Milton Shapp has issued a special proclamation designating the 26th as "Equal Rights Day," in commemoration of women's suffrage and in honor of the federal Equal Rights Amendment.

The state ERA was passed overwhelmingly by the Pennsylvania Legislature and approved by Commonwealth voters in 1971. The changes it has effected so far are outlined below.

Judicial

Under a ruling by the state Attorney General, women may use their give (maiden) names for legal purposes.

The Pa. Supreme Court has ruled that child support is determined by the parents' ability to provide. As Judge Murphy of the First Judicial District's Family Court stated, "... the duty of child support no longer rests primarily with the father, but must be divided between the parents according to their ability to pay. This is not, of course, to suggest that a mother who is keeping a house and caring for her children must secure the services of a babysitter and seek employment in order to contribute to the children's financial support: it is obvious that a mother who is caring for her children is providing them with valuable support." (emphasis added).

The women's minimum sentencing law was declared unconstitutional and no longer applicable. The law had formerly stated that men had a minimum and maximum sentence, presumably because they would be rehabilitated sooner and be eligible for parole sooner than if they had to serve a minimum sentence. In practice this resulted in women having to serve a maximum sentence because no minimum had been established. As a result of a suit by the Department of Justice, both men and women offenders must now have a minimum sentence.

HB 1521, session of 1973 and 1974, had extended alimony pendente lite to both sexes. (Temporary alimony granted before divorce becomes final.) In a court case in which the Dept. of Justice entered an amicus brief, the earlier law (limiting alimony pendente lite to wives only) was declared unconstitutional in light of Pa. ERA, with the Court noting that the law had been changed since the case was filed.

At the request of the Commission, the Justice Department filed suit against the Pennsylvania Interstate Athletic Association to strike down their prohibition against high school girls' access to interscholastic team competition with boys. This regulation by a private organization had resulted in extensive discrimination against girls and girls' athletic teams. The Commonwealth Court ruled that the clause eliminating girls was unconstitutional.

The State Department of Education has developed guidelines for the establishment of a Director of Equal Opportunity in sports at state colleges and universities. The Director shall ensure the equality of opportunity in sports for women and minorities.

The State Board of Education has adopted regulations for community colleges, state-related and state-aided institutions in the Commonwealth to ensure non-discrimination in employment, admissions curriculum, availability of services and facilities on the basis of race, color, religious creed, ancestry, national origin, age or sex.

The Board of State College and University Directors adopted retrenchment regulations relating to the Commonwealth's state colleges and universities which are in accordance with the Commonwealth Affirmative Action program. The pre-retrenchment percentages of representation of white males, women and minorities shall be maintained after retrenchment procedures.

Program assists women

HARRISBURG — On February 17, 1975, Governor Milton J. Shapp created via Executive Order a new Commission for Women to succeed the former Commission on the Status of Women.

The new commission, like its predecessor, acts as an advocate for Pennsylvania's 6.6 million women. Though lacking enforcement power, the commission has been charged with the responsibility of planning and implementing programs to insure that women in Pennsylvania are equal participants in the life of the Commonwealth. The commission's mandate rests on the Equal Rights Amendment of 1971, Article I, Section 28 of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

The Commission's director (currently Marie R. Keeney) is appointed by the Governor and reports directly to him regarding matters affecting women. She is assisted by a staff of four.

The commission is composed of 21 members who serve in an advisory capacity and without compensation. The commissioners serve staggered terms of one to two years and assist the director in developing policies and carrying out programs. Upon recommendation of the director, they investigate allegations of discriminatory practices against women and, if necessary, hold public hearings to gather information, inform the public, and encourage public participation.

Drawn from throughout the state, the 21 commissioners represent a cross-section of Pennsylvania citizens — geographically, ethnically, racially, economically, and by age. All have been active in women's issues, and each is a specialist in one or more areas of women's concern.

Accomplishments and plans

The Commission for Women's major priority for 1975-76 is implementation of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution. This process includes a complete review of state laws to determine which need revision in order to comply with the ERA. ERA implementation also requires review of state regulations and procedures to ensure equal treatment.

In addition to laying the groundwork for ERA implementation, the commission will continue to deal with complaints and questions about discrimination. It will also continue to serve as a resource center for scholars, students, the legislature, state agencies, and interested citizens who want to use the commission files to do research on women's issues and problems.

With the aid of a $117,000 federal grant under the Concentrated Employment Training Act, the commission plans to produce an audio-visual program to combat job discrimination against women.

BUSHKILL — Mr. and Mrs. Gary Clair Possinger observed their first anniversary at a combination anniversary-house warming party given by Mrs. Possinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Perry Sr., on Sunday, Aug. 10.

A picnic dinner was served to 55 guests. Music was provided by Paul Pinto.

Boy Scouts earn money

EAST STROUDSBURG — Scouts of Troop 81 B.S.A. of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church are maintaining a recycling center in the borough.

Area residents are urged to save their glass and newspapers and bring these items to the North Kistler Street recycling center.

No magazines or cardboard can be collected. Glass must be clean with no metal tops and newspapers should be tied in bundles.

All monies derived from the center goes toward the operation of the troop and camping for the scouts.

A trailer will be located at the center this Saturday and every Saturday from July 19 on. There are signs on North Kistler Street directing residents to the trailer.

Watts-Nicolais

BERWICK — Debra Ann Watts and Michael Vincent Nicolais were married on August 19 at the Grace Lutheran Church in Berwick. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert E. Custer.

Mrs. Nicolais is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Watts, Beach Haven. She was given in marriage by her father.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Nicolais, 354 E. Brown St., East Stroudsburg.

Miss Joann Zaleskas, Gainesville, Fla., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were: Miss April Nicolais, sister of the groom, East Stroudsburg; Miss Gail Kichner, Wapwallopen; Miss Nancy Snyder, Stroudsburg; and Miss Linda Paluck, Wyoming.

There were two flower girls, both of Beach Haven: Diana Lynn Watts, sister of the bride, and Kimberly Sabol, cousin of the bride.

Richard Nicolais, East Stroudsburg, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were: Francis O'Donnell, Jim Thorpe; Dennis McMahon, Norristown; Larry Bonner, Easton; and Andy Fields, Cherry Hill, N.J.

Following the 3 p.m. ceremony, a reception was held at the Sheraton Inn, Danville, for 215 guests.

The couple took a wedding trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica. They will make their home at 3120 Naamans Rd., Wilmington, Del.

The bride received her schooling at Berwick High School and the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital School of Nursing.

The groom was educated at Pocono Central Catholic High School, Brandywine College, and Wilkes College. He is now assistant director of admissions at Brandywine College.

Antoine Dutot Museum sponsors trip, exhibit

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A group of 35 art lovers are in Washington today to view the exhibit of paintings of the Delaware Water Gap being shown at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in collaboration with the Artists for Environment Foundation.

The trip was organized by Duane Walck, president of the Antoine Dutot School and Museum, Francis Drake, curator of the museum, and Mrs. Drake.

In addition to visiting the gallery, the group will be visiting other points of interest.

Now on exhibit at the Dutot Museum is a group of paintings by Carole A. Vitale. A reception was held last night to introduce the artist and officially open the exhibit. The paintings may be seen from Aug. 23 through Sept. 7 from 1-5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Early deafness may be hereditary

Two of my sisters began to lose their hearing when they were only 30. I am 26 and I've noticed that since the birth of my second child my hearing is not as sharp as it used to be. Will I have the same problem as my sisters?

Mrs. V.T., Neb.
Dear Mrs. T.:
Your observation that your hearing was less acute after pregnancy is a very interesting one. This, coupled with the fact that your sisters became deaf at an early age, suggests the possibility that a hereditary condition known as "otosclerosis" may be present.

For some unexplained reason, pregnancy, especially during the end stages, may cause some drop in hearing.

Otosclerosis follows a family pattern and more frequently involves women than men. Although it is a complex condition, the diagnosis can be made by an ear specialist. Complete examination of the ears, X-ray studies and special audiometric hearing tests can point to the possibility that otosclerosis exists.

There is, at present, no medical method by which the progress of this condition can be interrupted.

However, today, there is an operation known as "stapedectomy" which is remarkably effective in a high percentage of cases of otosclerosis.

The operation was first described at the turn of the century. Interest in it was lost until 1955, when tremendous strides were made in modifying the original idea, by Dr. Samuel Rosen of New York City.

Extensions of his idea have made the present stapedectomy a boon to those for whom there was no medical or surgical hope. The most ingenious techniques are used today in this operation. It is now possible to reopen, in the ear, the pathway for the transmission of sound that has been blocked by otosclerosis.

There are, of course, other types of deafness which are not amenable to this particular type of surgery.

A complete survey of your problem is essential. Rather than live in the shadow of fear that your hearing may be progressively lost, you must make inquiry from your physician and ear specialist and find out if you are one of the ideal candidates for this type of surgery.

LEO

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — You will find the "little" things rewarding now. Don't look for the spectacular. Be satisfied with even small gains.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — A new outlook will help you to improve relations with family, friends. Insight may come through your highly intuitive faculties; more flexibility through the erasure of past concepts.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — A day in which to get away from routine. New scenes, new people, new activities could spark a brand new interest in your life, make it more stimulating.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Do not become frustrated over possible delays or disappointments. With your innate intelligence and ingenuity, you can change undesirable situations.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Fine solar influences! With initiative and enterprise, more than usual can be achieved. Day will definitely respond to imagination, aggressiveness.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — A day for listening well and voicing well-considered opinions. Take stock of why certain maneuvers and tactics did not succeed in the past and avoid them now.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Emphasize dependability, referral to others' ideas, building a store of usable data, facts. Avoid: making decisions without reflection, overoptimism.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — You may be too volatile, displaying nervousness and anxiety. This is not like the REAL you. Give yourself a pep talk and get in there and pitch — with your usual self-confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Resoluteness and determination will put this day in the winning column. Weed out certain undesirable attachments, practices, methods.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Everyday matters may give most concern. Employ "tried and true" methods in areas where you must act but have little to go on for reference. Your staying power will aid you.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Where your intuition strongly dictates, first make sure, but then I/O act, and deliberately, in your innately well-disposed manner. Your artistry under splendid influences.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — You can have what you want if you work carefully and with consideration for others. Neither attack nor retreat, but go forth calmly and you WILL achieve.

History goes up in smoke

Ecology of keepsakes changing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The age when great achievements were saluted with commemorative coins, metals, stamps and other lasting mementos may be drawing to a close.

Its demise can be foreseen in the memorializing of the recent Soviet-American space mission with an Apollo-Soyuz commemorative cigarette.

Jointly produced by a U.S. tobacco company and a Soviet firm, Apollo-Soyuz sell for $1 a pack, $10 a carton. But not very often.

Smokers, apparently, have not been overly enthusiastic about lighting up in honor of the first international link-up of space vehicles.

The scant demand, however, cannot hold back eventual acceptance of an idea whose time has come. It only means that the medium for commemorating future attainments of historic proportions may not necessarily be cigarettes.

Let's say that sometime soon an American astronaut becomes the first human being to set foot on another planet.

Fruit stands promptly begin offering at $10 a bunch, or $100 per stalk, Mars Mission commemorative bananas.

Or perhaps Mars Mission commemorative cantaloupes. The commodity doesn't matter as long as it's consumable.

The point is that in an era when trash disposal has become a major environmental problem, it is ecologically unsound to keep turning out commemorative items that are non-biodegradable.

Sooner or later, the thrill that incites you to purchase a hardware memento is going to wear off. Then comes the problem of what to do with it.

I have such a problem in the form of an ash tray commemorating the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. It's a thing of beauty — translucent blue with a likeness of Her Highness on the bottom. But I no longer smoke.

Moreover, the event that it commemorates has all but faded from my memory. Indeed, I now have trouble remembering when Elizabeth II wasn't queen. And so the object has lost both its utilitarian and its symbolic significance.

But there it is, still cluttering up the coffee table. For environmental reasons I am reluctant to discard it, and the storage space in my house is already taken up with such memorabilia as the spike-shaped thermometer commemorating the opening of the Pike's Peak cog railroad.

The way it looks now, one good possibility is a $10 commemorative gallon of gasoline.

Legion essay topic announced

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania American Legion has announced the topic for the 1976 Pennsylvania American Legion High School Essay Contest.
"The Declaration of Independence, 1776-1976," is the title, according to Danny E. Shaffer, State American Legion Essay Chairman.
"The committee, which met recently in Danville, wanted to select a topic that would fit in with the American Bicentennial," Shaffer said. "A number of topics were suggested; however, the committee agreed that the basic document of our freedom was undoubtedly the theme that would invoke the greatest amount of interest and enthusiasm."

E-burg firm safety mark just a short slip away

EAST STROUDSBURG — Employees at McGraw-Edison Co. Power Systems Division, East Stroudsburg plant are keeping their fingers crossed that no one has an accident before Sept. 5.

That is the anniversary of the date Operation Zero, a plant-wide safety program, went into effect.

As of Friday, the plant has gone 351 days and 400,000 man-hours without lost time due to an industrial accident, according to John Arslain, personnel director.

This record is a great improvement over previous years. Last year, there were seven accidents. There were eight in 1973 and 15 in 1972.

Arslain said the majority of the accidents were not that serious. Some of the worst accidents were those in which people's fingers were amputated.

Operation Zero is an accident prevention system that stresses fundamentals, according to the personnel director.

The program includes safe job procedures, proper accident investigation, safety inspections and personal protective equipment for employees. Operation Zero includes as management training program for 25 managers and supervisors.

Arslain said this program has paid off in that so far, no accidents have occurred.

If everyone remains safety conscious and no accidents occur before the anniversary of the inception of the safety program, a celebration is planned.

Each employee will receive an award upon arrival at work at 7 a.m. Sept. 5. The plant will receive an award from the corporate office, Arslain said.

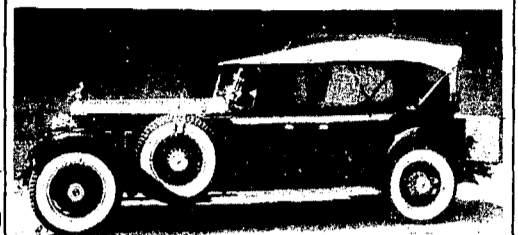

The accident rate for McGraw-Edison is 4.11 accidents per million man-hours worked. The East Stroudsburg plant's accident rate is zero.

Wage complaints increase in Pocono area resorts

By DEBORAH ENYEART

Pocono Record Reporter

WILKES-BARRE — The

number of complaints about violations of the wage and hour laws in the Poconos increased 30 per cent this summer.

W. James Easterly, of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor and Industry, said the bureau received more complaints than usual this summer.

He said the department is still investigating complaints at "several" Monroe County resorts.

The most frequently violated section of the act is overtime pay.

Easterly said employees are often paid regular time wages or hired on salaries without overtime, or the records are falsified to remove overtime.

He added the most difficult part of enforcement is tracing wage and hour records that have been falsified.

Last year the department investigated 39 resorts in Monroe, Pike, Wayne and Carbon Counties and forced payment of $27,984.

The majority of the complaints last year, 25, occurred in Monroe County and resulted in the payment of $14,032 to 79 people.

Easterly said the refunded money included $11,492 in overtime and $550 for equal pay.

The Fair Labor Standards Act includes resorts with hotels even if they are only operated seasonally.

Basic pay requirements
The act says hotel and resort employees are supposed to receive at least $2 an hour.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1976, they will be entitled to $2.20 an hour, which will increase to $2.30 an hour the following New Year's Day.

Wage payment

An employee doesn't have to be paid each week but must be paid on a regular basis.

Minimum wage and overtime must be computed weekly and can't be averaged over two or more work weeks.

The act defines a workweek as a regular interval of seven days and may begin on any day at any time. Once the pattern is set, however, it can't be altered.

An employer can consider meals, lodging or "other facilities" as wages if they are "customarily provided."

The act states that other facilities can include "meals furnished at company restaurants or cafeterias or by hospitals, hotels or restaurants to their employees; housing furnished for dwelling purposes; general merchandise furnished at company stores and commissaries."

The "reasonable cost" of these services is defined as not more than the actual cost to the employer.

How to reach Labor Dept.

STROUDSBURG — If you work in a Pocono area resort and have questions about your wages and hours or just want to make sure you are being treated fairly by your employer, here's what you can do.

Contact the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, 602 Veterans Building, 19 N. Main St., Wilkes-Barre, 18701 or phone 1-825-6811.

Or write to The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, 18360; phone: 421-3000. Address your letters and calls to Deborah Enyeart, reporter or ask for the city editor. We cannot interpret the law, but we will refer your problem to someone who can help.

ly received from the minimum wage he must pay.

Equal pay

The act forbids employers from paying an employee of one sex more than the employee of another sex for the same work.

Exceptions can be provided for different pay rates on basis other than sex, such as seniority.

Overtime pay

A partial overtime exemption for hotel and motel employees is provided by the act.

These employees, except for maids and custodians, are exempt provided they receive compensation for work over 46 hours a week, at time and a half their regular rate.

Employers not subject to the exemption must be paid at least time and a half their regular rates for hours over the maximum standard.

This section of the act has caused confusion among both employers and employees in Pocono resorts.

Records

The act requires employers to keep records of wages, hours and other items for all employees.

Special records are required for employees under "unusual pay arrangements" or who receive board, lodging or other facilities.

Required information must be kept for three years while other items need only be kept for two years.

Some of the required information is the employee's full name, home address, birthdate if under 19, sex, occupation, total daily or weekly regular earnings, and total overtime excess compensation.

The act provides four methods of recovering back pay: — the administrator may supervise payment of back wages.

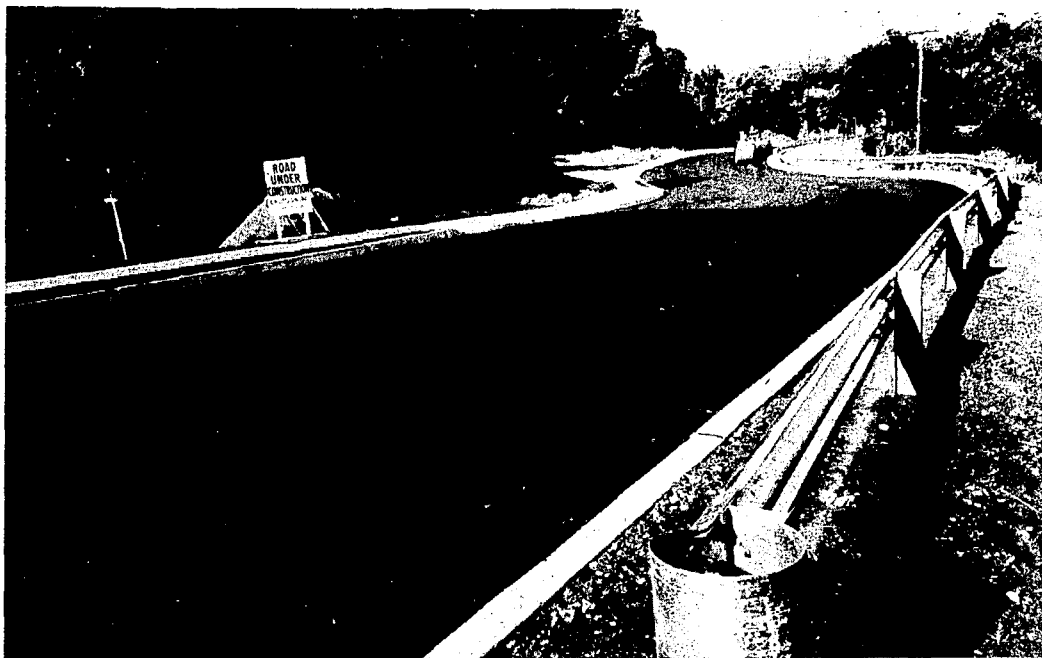

— sometimes the secretary of labor may sue for back wages.

— an employee may sue for back wages and an equal amount in "liquidated damages" plus attorneys' fees and court costs.

— the secretary of labor can obtain a court injunction on violations of the law, including the unlawful withholding of minimum pay and overtime.

Willful violations carry a fine up to $10,000 for a first conviction and imprisonment for a second conviction.

The act provides a two-year statute of limitations for recovering back wages. In case of willful violations, the statute of limitations is three years.

BLACKING OVER SARAH — Heavy rollers smooth over the freshly-applied blacktop surface on the extension of Sarah Street between Fifth Street and McConnell Street, Stroudsburg. The road should be completed soon after Labor Day.

Directors to debate rate hike

Hospital prices may increase

EAST STROUDSBURG — A suggested room rate increase at the General Hospital of Monroe County hasn't been settled but will be discussed at the board of directors meeting Monday night.

A hospital spokesman said Friday the issue was on the agenda for the monthly meeting, but he was unable to say how large an increase was being discussed.

Hospital administrator Charles Swisher said July 1 the 140 per cent increase in the hospital's malpractice insurance would have to be paid by the patient and would probably be in the form of an increased room rate.

The board of directors hiked room rates 10 per cent in June, 1974, and another 10 per cent last October.

Inflation in goods and services was blamed for raising the cost of a day's stay at the hospital 13.4 per cent during the first half of this year compared with the same time period last year.

A hospital spokesman said the cost of a day's stay on Aug. 20 was $115.90 compared with $102.23 on the same day last year.

Nationally hospital daily costs increased 17.5 per cent from $111.66 to $131.20.

The spokesman said a lot of the increased costs came from staff pay hikes of 5.5 per cent in January, 1974, and of 8 per cent last September.

Other hospital services that have increased in cost are food service and the cost of food.

Additional increases occurred in rising fuel costs and products made from petrochemicals, such as plastics, drugs and fabrics, he said.

"The hospital uses everything the society uses in general and gets hit with the same kinds of increases," he explained.

Admissions increased .6 per cent from 4,039 admissions in the first half of 1974 to 4,065 admissions for the same time in 1975.

The spokesman also reported a 12.5 per cent increase in the number of patients using the emergency room facilities.

The emergency room had 14,702 visits in the first six months of last year compared with 16,546 visits this year.

HoJo boundary question; Where does it all stand?

STROUDSBURG — One phase of the case involving a boundary dispute over Howard Johnson's taxing district is expected to be argued in Monroe County Court this fall, attorneys for both sides said Friday.

There has been little visible action on the case since 1973 because the two sides were attempting to negotiate an out of court settlement, the attorneys said.

ship a part of the East Stroudsburg School District.

Howard Johnson's is assessed by the county as being in Delaware Water Gap but the East Stroudsburg School District and Smithfield Township assert they should get the $35,000 a year in taxes because most of the facility is in Smithfield Township.

John Hiscott, solicitor for Delaware Water Gap and the Stroudsburg School District said he expects oral arguments will be heard in October on whether Stroudsburg schools and Delaware Water Gap can intervene in the case which only named the county assessor and the board of assessment appeals as defendants.

Hiscott is seeking to have the school district and borough also become defendants because they receive benefit from the taxes.

Alex Bensinger, solicitor for the East Stroudsburg School District, said he expects the question of whether the Stroudsburg schools and Delaware Water Gap can enter the suit to be argued in court this fall.

Both attorneys said they have been trying to settle the boundary dispute out of court but were unsuccessful.

Howard Johnson's recently paid $22,648 in 1973 taxes which were ordered by the court to be placed in an escrow account until the matter is settled. Howard Johnson's still owes about $17,000 on its 1973 taxes.

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Zoning Hearing Board Thursday continued a hearing on the George N. Kemp American Legion Post's application to construct a building behind Chestnut Street at Fourth and Fifth Streets.

A decision on the matter will be made by the next regular board meeting, Sept. 18, according to board solicitor Bernard Billick.

The East Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Commission approved the plans Aug. 12. Their decision will be added to the testimony for the zoning hearing board's review before a decision is made.

The zoners also continued a hearing on a special use variance for a group residence at 285 Prospect St., owned by Irvin T. Burch of Wilkes-Barre. The plan presented was not complete.

The board approved two variances for the East Stroudsburg Area School District; one for an athletic field and the other to build a bus maintenance garage on the Junior-Senior High School premises.

Attorney Billick said Friday decisions on variance requests by Soble Construction Co. and by Prudential Insurance Co. should be available sometime next week.

Soble Construction Co. has proposed building a 488-unit housing project in a one-family residential district between Spangenberg Avenue and Adelaide Street. Prudential Insurance Co. is requesting a variance to allow the erection of an illuminated sign and two plaques at 401 Prospect St. Another business located in the same building has used up all the allowable sign space.

School meets

STROUDSBURG — The Board of School Directors of the Stroudsburg Area School District will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 27 in the conference room of the high school. The meeting has been called for general purposes and to announce decision on kindergarten scheduling.

Police blotter

Driving charge dropped

STROUDSBURG — District Magistrate Graden Praetorius Thursday dismissed charges of driving under the influence of alcohol against Keith Green of Delaware Water Gap for lack of evidence. Green was arrested Aug. 17 in Delaware Water Gap.

Accident victims treated

EASTON — Two women were treated and released from Easton Hospital Friday after a 2:10 a.m. one-car accident on Bangor-Richmond Road, Washington Township.

Emily Howey, 59, of East Stroudsburg R. D. 4 was headed west when she failed to negotiate a curve in the roadway, ran off, struck a tree and a steel bridge abutment.

She and a passenger, Naomi Heckman, 30, of Bangor, R. D. 3 were taken to the hospital by Liberty Ambulance. A third passenger, an unidentified male, apparently left the scene, according to state police at Easton.

Burglary suspects

MILFORD — Two Oliphant men were arrested for burglary Friday by state police from Milford.

Rossi Olfano, 20, of 702 East Lackawanna St. and Michael Krisler, 21, 827 N. Valley Avenue allegedly stole furniture from a vacant house in Green Township.

They were arraigned before District Magistrate George Hatley and released on their own recognizance.

Search broadens

HONESDALE — Police, firemen, a canine search unit, the Civil Air Patrol and the 109th Infantry Division of Scranton all participated in a continuing search for a severely retarded woman who wandered from a Lebanon Township camp Wednesday.

Police said Lusia Burdi, 40, was last seen wearing a red dress and a tan trench coat. She is 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighs about 135 pounds. She has very short dark brown hair and a fair complexion.

She walked away from Camp Rosemont, T.R. 617, Lebanon Township, 14 miles north of Honesdale.

Five injured in crash

MILFORD — Five people were injured in a 12:45 p.m. two-car collision Friday on U.S. Rte. 209 in Lehman Township, six miles south of Dingmans Ferry.

Malcolm and Edith MacGregor of Peabody, Mass. were in satisfactory condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County. Their daughter, Janet, was under observation there. William and Rose Carroll were treated and released.

William Carroll was southbound on 209 when he crossed the center line and struck Mrs. MacGregor head-on. He then skidded 42 feet across the northbound lane and 60 feet off the road down a wooded embankment.

Mrs. Dixon sentencing scheduled

STROUDSBURG — A former Anasomink woman who was convicted in 1973 of murdering her infant son is scheduled to appear for sentencing Monday in Monroe County Court.

Mrs. Linda Dixon, 23, was convicted of second degree murder on Nov. 15, 1973 following a non-jury trial before President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

She could receive a maximum 20-year sentence for the strangulation death of her son, Christopher, 2, whose body was found in July, 1973 in a heavily wooded section in Anasomink.

During the two-day trial, police testified that Mrs. Dixon admitted choking her son when she was questioned about his disappearance.

A motion for a new trial was denied last month by Judge Williams. Defense attorneys asserted Mrs. Dixon was "made" to confess by police but Williams ruled her confession was properly obtained and admitted as evidence.

Williams said Mrs. Dixon was under stress at the time of the confession but that stress was created by her own actions during the preceding six weeks and not by the police questioning.

Congress catalogues 'Minisink'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "The Minisink," a book on the history of the Minisink Valley along the Delaware, has been presented to the Library of Congress and is now catalogued there according to U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott.

The book was prepared by Patricia Valence. Russell Woodling and Dennis Berland for the Four County Task Force to support its position against construction of the Tocks Island Dam.

The library's catalogue information will list the book as being "A chronicle of one of America's first and last frontiers."

Power cut short

GOULDSBORO — Some 740 Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. customers were temporarily without power Friday afternoon when a tree fell on a line feeding into the Gouldsboro substation, a company spokesman reported.

but that isn't much wood so most land would qualify, Schweiger said.

Commissioner Arlington Martin said some land would be valued at $5 an acre under the program but would have a fair market price of $1,000 an acre if sold for development.

Schweiger said the value must be according to soil capability and not development worth.

William H. Fetherman, chief assessor for the county, estimated the loss of assessment would be about $3 million on the 52,000 acres included in the applications for agricultural use, agricultural reserve and forest land.

Fetherman said the 52,000 acres "is just the start of the worry" because more tracts could apply in coming years.

Mrs. Nancy B. Shukatis, board of commissioners chairman, said the county's main concern is setting of the assessment values. "The people who applied should receive some consideration. We have one group of taxpayers who will be paying less meaning the other will have to pay more."

Write to know

Q. I have been refused a credit card because I am an unmarried female. Is there any recourse I can take? Are there any agencies that will help me take action against such discrimination?

M.M., Pocono Pines

A. The Commission on the Status of Women in Harrisburg recommends several procedures to follow if you feel you've been discriminated against because you're a woman. First go back and speak to the creditor and demand an explanation. If the explanation isn't satisfactory, speak to someone higher in the chain of command. If you are told the problem involves a credit bureau you have the right under federal law to know the name of the bureau and to learn from the bureau the reason for your rejection. If you find your credit file is incomplete or inaccurate you may request the bureau to re-investigate and change the inaccurate information. If you still fail to get anywhere, you can write to the Commission on the Status of Women at 512 Finance Building, Harrisburg, Pa.

Q. Can you tell me if there is anyone in the area who fixes umbrellas?

J.B., East Stroudsburg

A. We weren't able to locate anyone with that particular talent. Perhaps a reader knows of someone who could be of help.

Q. We have a Cox Camper with a hard bottom, but a canvas top. The bottom is in excellent condition, but the canvas needs to be replaced. Is there anyone in the area who does this work?

H.L., East Stroudsburg

A. You're going to have to travel a little. The closest spot we could find was Albeth Canvas and Repair Co. just outside Allentown. If the canvas needs to be repaired or replaced, they can do it for you. To get there take Rte. 33 South to Rte. 22. Travel west on Rte. 22 to Rte. 309 South. Take Rte. 309 South past the Allentown exits and turn right onto Saucon Valley Rd. At the first stop sign, you'll be able to see the store. If you want to phone ahead the number is 215-797-0850.

Q. I sent for three climbing vine peach plants on April 1. The money order was paid to Westband Nursery Sales Corp. I confirmed this through a check with the postal service. I wrote to the company, but never received a response. Can you find out the problem?

R.K., Swiftwater

A. We had quite a time tracking down Westband Nursery Sales. The firm only used Scarsdale, N.Y. as a post office box. The main office was located in New York City, but when we placed a call there, we discovered the company had moved to Connecticut. We finally reached the company there. Expect a letter from Westband's customer service department to arrive shortly which should help to rectify your problem.

Q. Since the beginning of this year I have tried to obtain a recent copy of Dog World magazine. I can't find a news dealer that carries it, and no one seems to know why the magazine isn't around anymore. Do you know what happened to the magazine, who carries it, or where I can get a copy?

M.I.R., East Stroudsburg

A. Dog World magazine is alive and well in Westchester, Ill. If you're having trouble buying it at your newsstand, the easiest solution would be to buy a subscription. It's $10 a year which would save you $2 over newsstand prices. You can write to Dog World's circulation department at 10060 West Roosevelt Road, Westchester, Ill. 60153.

Amritraj upsets Connors

SOUTH ORANGE (UPI) — Vijay Amritraj, the 21-year-old Indian who burst on the American scene two years ago with a victory in the Volvo International over Jimmy Connors, came through Friday night with another stunning upset over the world's No. 1 ranked player.

Amritraj, seeded sixth, outlasted Connors, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4 in a quarterfinal match that lasted five hours because of a heavy downpour midway in the second set.

Amritraj was joined in the semifinals by his unseeded brother, Anand, 23, and Bob Hewitt of South Africa, seeded seventh. Second-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania scored a 6-2, 6-3, victory over Balazs Taroczy of Hungary in 74 minutes.

Anand, who reached the semifinals of the tournament here last year, ousted Vic Amaya of Ann Arbor, Mich., 7-6, 6-3 and Hewitt also won in straight sets over fellow South African Ray Moore, 6-2, 6-2. Hewitt, 35, has lost only nine games in three matches.

Suits settled

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and the tennis establishment buried the hatchet Friday, with the Association of Tennis Professionals settling out of court "for a substantial amount" the multi-million dollar suits Connors had filed against Association of Tennis Player executives Jack Kramer, Donald Dell and Arthur Ashe.

HAPPY SMILE — Tournament Players Championship leader Al Geiberger smiles happily and teases his caddy as son Robby looks on. Geiberger had a 68 to complete 36 holes at 134, six-under-par and two strokes in front of Dave Stockton, who had a 64 Friday, and Bob Dickson, who had a 69. The final 36 players were still on the course when rain forced a delay in the completion of the round until today.

(UPI)

Fires 68 for 134 total; Nicklaus falls to 75

Geiberger leads TPC by two strokes

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Al Geiberger stalked through the sunshine to his second straight sub par round Friday, escaped a late afternoon thunderstorm that postponed play with 36 players still on the course, and took a two-shot lead midway through the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship.

The storm put a dent in the 100-degree heat which had wilted most of the field earlier in the day, including Jack Nicklaus — who plunked a shot into the water on his last hole — and posted a five over 75 to fade from a stroke off the lead to six shots behind Geiberger.

The players who did not finish the round — none of them a threat to take over the lead — were scheduled to complete play this morning, after which the 36-hole cut would be made and the third round would begin.

Geiberger donned a floppy brimmed hat to keep the heat off and shot a two-under 68 over the double tough, 7,100-yard par 70 Colonial Country Club course for a 36-hole total of six under 134.

That was good enough to hold off the charge of his good friend Dave Stockton, who shot the second lowest competitive score ever fired at Colonial. Stockton posted a six-under 64 for a two-round total of 136 and moved into a tie for second with Bob Dickson, who shot a 69 Friday.

Both Hubert Green and John Schlee had a chance to move into a second place tie. Both were caught in the lightning bearing storm with Green standing at three under par with two holes to play and Schlee at the same figure with one to play.

The only other players to finish the second round under par were Bill Rogers, Hale Irwin and Mason Rudolph.

Among the casualties other than Nicklaus was Arnold Palmer, who shot a 78 for a 149, a figure likely to miss the cut. Geiberger is glad he came to Fort Worth, but a few weeks ago he had devised a plan by which he could miss the TPC — an event in which he was required to compete.

"I knew that the people in Endicott, N. Y. at the B. C. Open (to be played next week) were going to have a weak field," Geiberger said. "I told (golf commissioner) Deane Berman that the if the PGA would let me out of coming to Fort Worth, I would go to Endicott."

"Berman said that he liked the idea and that it was fine with him. But, then, the people at the club I represent in California told me that they needed me there next week for some appearances so the whole plan fell through and I came here."

Geiberger played steady golf all day, paring 12 straight holes before running in a six-foot birdie putt at the par three 13th. He wound up the day with a five-foot birdie putt at the par four 18th.

Haynie fires 68 for 'Denver' lead

DENVER (UPI) — Sandra Haynie, the winner in two of the three years this city has hosted an LPGA tournament, shot a four under par 68 Friday to join Judy Rankin and Kathy Martin in a tie for the first round lead in the $40,000

Denver Women's Golf Tournament.

Miss Haynie had an eagle, four birdies and two bogeys. Miss Judy Rankin had four birdies and 14 pars. The scrambling Miss Martin had six birdies on the 6,229-yard Pinehurst Country Club Course but took bogeys on the third and 10th holes, three-putting both greens.

Six golfers were a stroke back with 69s. In at three-under-par were Sue Roberts, who bogeyed the 18th and 18th holes to fall out of the lead, Sandra Spuzich, Carol Mann, Jane Blalock, JoAnne Carner, and Donna Caponi Young.

In all, 28 of the 77 women broke par, including Denver amateur Carol Flenniken, who was among eight golfers at 70. Also at 70 was JoAnn Washam, who last week won her first tournament in her three years on the LPGA circuit. Another six women were in at par 72, including leading money winner Sandra Palmer.

Lakewood, Tampa LL foes

WILLIAMSPORT (UPI) — Unbeaten Lakewood, N. J., and Tampa, Fla., with a combined record of 27 victories, meet today in the title game of the Little League Baseball Championship Series.

Lakewood has a tournament record of 14-0 while Tampa is 13-0.

The last time an American team won the series was in 1970 when Wayne, N.J., gained the title.

George Starr, a righthander with a 3-0 record, is the probable pitcher for Lakewood. Tampa's probable starter is lefty Vance Lovelace, 1-0.

Earlier Friday, Sheila Reynolds singled in the bottom of the 13th inning to give Tampa, Fla. a 3-2 victory over Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin in the Little League Softball consolation game.

Her winning hit came after teammate Terry Krumboltz led off the inning with a single and Kelly Kaiser had also singled. Tampa outlasted Sturgeon Bay 13-11.

Pirates sweep Reds to boost East lead

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dave Parker belted a two-run homer and Richie Hebner followed with a solo shot in the eighth inning Friday night to give Pittsburgh a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and a sweep of their doubleheader after the Pirates won the opener 7-2 on a pair of homers by Richie Zisk.

A crowd of 45,576—largest this year at Three Rivers Stadium—watched the Pirates run their winning streak to four games and increase their lead over Philadelphia in the National League East to two games.

Rookie John Candelaria, with ninth inning relief help from Dave Giusti, picked up his seventh victory against three losses in the nightcap. Tony Perez' two-run homer had given the Reds a 2-0 lead in the eighth but the Pirates rallied in their half of the inning on a walk to pinch-hitter Willie Randolph and a double by Rennie Stennett. Al Oliver's groundout scored one run and Parker put the Pirates ahead 3-2 with his 20th homer of the year. Hebner then followed with his homer.

In the first game, Zisk homered in the second inning to give Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead then broke a 1-1 tie with his 15th homer in the fourth before the Pirates erupted for five runs against Jack Billingham in the sixth.

Larry Demery, making his first start since July 7, allowed seven hits in eight inning to gain his sixth victory in nine decisions. Giusti relieved in the ninth.

Braves, 9-5

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rob Bellor tripled home two runs in the fifth inning Friday night and singled home two more during a six-run sixth that sparked the Atlanta Braves to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Braves, trailing 4-3, rallied against reliever Harry Parker in the sixth as Rod Gilbreath, Darrell Evans and Earl Williams singled. Mike Garman replaced Parker and served up a single to Dusty Baker, scoring Gilbreath and Evans to give the Braves a 5-4 lead.

Rowland Office then bunted back to first baseman Reggie Smith, who bobbed the ball for an error to load the bases. Williams scored on a wild pitch by Garman and Vic Correll walked to reload the bases. Bellor singled home Baker and Office to make it 8-4 and Gilbreath's second hit of the inning scored Bellor for the final Braves' run.

Moret's four-hit pitching gives Red Sox 2-1 victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Dwight Evans homered in the fifth inning and Fred Lynn singled home what proved to be the winning run in the sixth Friday night to pace the Boston Red Sox to a 2-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox behind the four-hit pitching of Roger Moret.

Moret, despite giving up nine walks, escaped serious trouble in both the third and fourth innings before being touched for a run in the seventh. Evans led off the bottom of the fifth by lining starter and loser Claude Osteen's first pitch into the leftfield screen to give the Red Sox a 1-0 lead.

Boston made it 2-0 in the sixth inning when Carl Yastrzemski singled, stole second, went to third on catcher Brian Downing's throwing error and scored when Lynn tapped a grounder through a drawn-in infield.

The White Sox picked up a run in the seventh when Downing and Jerry Hairston drew walks after two were out and Bucky Dent grounded a single down the third base line.

Moret got into trouble in the third when he had runners on first and second with two out but got out of trouble by fanning Ken Henderson.

In the fourth, Deron Johnson led off with a single and Bill Melton followed with a walk. However, Moret got Bill Stein to fly out and Bob Coluccio to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Moret is now 10-2 while Osteen dropped to 6-12.

Alabama sues NCAA over football squad limits

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — The University of Alabama Friday filed suit against the NCAA in an effort to block that body's attempt to limit the size of major college football teams.

Alabama, a national football power which usually uses 70 to 80 players per game, is protesting new NCAA rules that would limit football teams to 60 players per home game and 48 on the road.

The suit was filed in Alabama circuit court in Tuscaloosa, challenging the legality of two rules changes adopted by a special NCAA convention last week in Chicago.

Southeastern Conference Commissioner Boyd McWhorter said that the conference may also be named as a defendant in the Alabama suit.

"The conference is not now a party, but our attorney is in consultation with the University of Alabama's attorneys," said McWhorter. He said the SEC attorney wants to be sure the conference will not also be sued.

McWhorter just two days ago stated that the SEC might have to leave the NCAA if some modification of the new rules could not be worked out.

University Attorney Paul Skidmore said the suit was filed on behalf of the university and all current Alabama football players. He said the suit seeks injunctive relief and requests the court to enjoin the NCAA from enforcing the rules as long as there are football players under contracts entered into prior to passage of the new rules.

Skidmore said a hearing has been set for next Friday. "The legal ground primarily advanced is that this immediate effect is an unlawful abridgment of existing contract rights, in that it severely limits an individual player's opportunity to participate in an intercollegiate game," said Skidmore.

"This, we maintain, is in violation of assurances which were made in good faith and based on historical fact and past practice at the University of Alabama, at the time of these persons' agreements to attend college at this institution."

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant said university officials instructed him to proceed with football practice as usual.

"We have never received any official word from the NCAA about these new limitations, which reportedly go into effect this fall," said Bryant. "We shall continue at Alabama as we were doing when we signed our players."

Bryant indicated the Crimson Tide may lead in a move away from the NCAA if efforts to amend unwanted NCAA rules fail.

"We think any rules should come in phases," said Bryant. "They should not be made immediately. We need separate divisions within the NCAA, or get out."

Schembechler also mad

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan says the NCAA was too lenient in its recruiting restrictions and too strict on how many players teams can dress for games at its recent cost-cutting session.

"They had to be tired and wanted to go home, the way they voted," Schembechler said Friday as his 1975 football team was introduced.

"There isn't enough restraint on recruiting," he said. "You can still recruit seven months of the year."

But what really made the coach of the Wolverines mad was the NCAA decision setting the number of players a school can take to away games at 48 and limiting the number it can dress at home to 60 players.

"You should be traveling 50 and dressing 75 at home," he snapped. Schembechler was also mildly displeased that the number of scholarships was slashed to a total of 95.

"Suppose you've got a couple of players hurt?" he said. "They don't look too good on Thursday but they heal fast and by game time they're able to play."

"And if you've got 95 grants (players on scholarship), why can you only dress 60?" he wanted to know. "How would you like to be on scholarship and never even get to dress for a game."

"A guy can work his tail off in practice all week and then Saturday — when he finally gets a chance to wear a Michigan uniform and represent his school — he doesn't get to dress," Schembechler said.

"These things cost costs but not very much. I want to cut costs, too," he said. "I'll take the uniforms home to my wife so she can wash them."

YOGI AND BILLY — Yogi Berra, left, and New York Yankees' manager Billy Martin discuss old times and the future after Berra stopped in at Shea Stadium Thursday night for a pre-game visit. The Yankees are reportedly offering Berra, fired earlier this month as the Mets' manager, a post as a Yankee coach for the return to Yankee Stadium next year. (UPI)

Warrior grid squad opens pre-season drills Sunday

EAST STROUDSBURG — With a year of adjustment over, Coach Dennis Douds will welcome 95 players to the start of East Stroudsburg State College's pre-season football practice Sunday at 2 p.m.

There will be three weeks of drills leading to the season's opener at Slippery Rock Sept. 13. The first home game will be against Montclair State Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. at the Stroudsburg High School Stadium.

A total of 34 lettermen are returning from last year's squad which posted a 5-5 record in Douds' first year as head coach.

"We are improved in every way over last year at this time," Douds said. "We have better personnel and the players and coaches have had the year of adjustment to our system."

Douds admits he is extremely enthusiastic about the upcoming season for a number of reasons, such as: The return of 16 of 22 starters including three-year starting defensive back Willard Stem, two-year regulars Rich Nicolais at defensive tackle and Doug Sheaffer at line-backer and running backs Pete Radocha, Bob Rinaldi and Don Ford, all of whom had 100-yard games last year.

The addition of four players from Nassau Community College on Long Island, center Bert Lok, offensive tackle Rus Bykovets and linebacker Ron Vitkun, all of whom participated in the Warriors' spring practice, and guard Bill White.

The added year of experience for quarterbacks Mike Terwilliger, still only a sophomore, and Jim Cantafio, a junior, in the team's twin year-of-fense.

The eligibility of four transfer students, running backs Ed Guers (Emmes Tech) and Lou Schiavetta (West Virginia State), split end Tony Donato (Temple) and Craig Witmer (Tampa), all of whom are expected to challenge for starting positions.

The debut of triplets Jeff Detzi, an offensive tackle; Joe Detzi, a linebacker; and John Detzi, a defensive end, all of whom are approximately 6-1, 220 and are potential regulars.

The presence of 35 freshmen in the pre-season camp from what Douds feels was one of the best recruiting years in his ten years at East Stroudsburg, eight as an assistant coach.

At linebacker, Sheaffer.

Doug Rhoads, Barney Leven-good and Roger Christman are all back. The defensive back-field of Stem, Rich Rodenberger, Frank Kelly and Andy Whittington returns intact.

Bob Boyd will again handle all the Warriors' kicking. Boyd was the team's leading scorer last year with 33 points on six field goals and 15 extra points in 17 tries. He also punted 56 times for a 34.6-yard average.

Rod Harter and Bryan Bankus, leaders on the kick coverage teams, return along with punt and kickoff returner Rick Jones.

Douds indicated that the East Stroudsburg team would work out three times daily from 9 to 10:50 a.m., 3 to 4:50 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. the first week of practice.

Top three finishers in each class go to 'districts'

4-H horse show winners announced

GILBERT — Officials of the annual Monroe County 4-H Horse Show have announced the winners in the competition held recently at the West End Fairgrounds.

The top three finishers will represent the county in the regional district show Saturday, Sept. 6 at 8:30 a.m. at the Carbon County fairgrounds in Lehigh.

At the district show, the area winners will compete with the 4-H representatives from Lackawanna, Luzerne, Pike, Wayne, Carbon and Schuylkill Counties. From the district show, the top two place winners will then advance to the state 4-H championship in November at Harrisburg.

"Prairie Wind" and Tildy Burke won the Cloverleaf Barrel Race and Pole Bending Classes for 13.2 hands and over. "Brandywine Shadow," ridden by Darlene Van Horn, won the Pole Bending and Open Trail Classes for 13.2 hands and under, with Cheryl VanHorn and "Queenie" placing second in the Trail Class.

National recreation area to feature bird walk today

By JOE RATTMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

LAYTON, N.J. — "They're probably all up in the trees looking down wondering what we're doing, silly things," said biologist Dorothy Hughes as she surveyed the woods looking for birds with a small group of park visitors.

She was leading one of two bird walks this summer in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area. The second is today at 4 p.m. starting at Millbrook Village.

The walks, led by professionals and intended for amateurs, are on easy terrain, lasting about an hour and a half. A large variety of bird species are found in the park.

"We were here last week and saw 150 species in an hour and a half," Hughes said during a recent interview. She is director of the Raccoon Ridge Bird Observatory located in the park near Layton, N.J.

The bird walk programs are new this year. Hughes is volunteering her time to the park service. During the first walk, about 40 persons took part. Hughes arranged for other guides including Kay Anderson of the National Audubon Society and Kathy Norris of the World of Birds at the Bronx Zoo in New York.

Birds could often be heard singing in the thicket but they could not always be seen. Numerous species hid in the grasses, trees and bushes, avoiding the afternoon heat.

Participants scanned the trees with binoculars looking for them.

Bird watchers were divided into groups of about 10 so that they could share their finds with each other. The group began their walk at a farm at Thunder Mountain, an environmental education center in the park operated by the Newton, N.J. Board of Education.

In the barnyard, cowbirds sat on the edge of a pen where pigs snorted at onlookers. Overhead, barn swallows watched from utility wires.

"Four o'clock is usually the hour that birds start foraging for food," Hughes explained. "If you see a bird, then let's see if we can share it."

In the cow pasture, several red-winged blackbirds made short flights looking for worms and insects. Those birds, Hughes pointed out, are one of the species that flock in large numbers during the spring in the South, causing problems for home owners and threatening to spread disease.

The walks are more than exercises at bird identification as other elements of the unspoiled natural setting become the focus of attention. The terrain where the birds make their home is also the habitat of other creatures, wildflowers and several species of trees.

The mixed forest of mostly deciduous trees is "the home of the woodpecker," Hughes said. The woodlands of Thunder Mountain are comprised of walnuts, hickorys, maples, poplars and other hardwoods. Some apple and cherry trees grow among them.

Around mostly mossy tree stumps, the group saw toad stools and Indian pipes, delicate and white. From a dead tree limb 30 feet over head, the group heard the song of a wood thrush. After a minute or two looking through the foliage, someone finally located him and pointed him out to the group.

The group passed through the woods to the edge of a marsh where they saw a gold finch skip over the reeds. The marsh was lush green after almost daily afternoon showers. Orchids and lillies towered over the reeds, soaking in the sun.

"On the edge of a marsh is really the best place to see birds because there's a tremendous amount of food in this area," Hughes said. Hughes described the birds that made each area their home but she also described other aspects of the environment for the bird watchers. The marsh edge, once a field, now has red cedars and grey birch.

Cherrys and oaks eventually will follow. The climax tree in the area is white pine.

"We have magnificent white pine trees all through here that you will see in areas of the park," Hughes said. Beavers, it could be seen, had dammed a stream through the marsh.

A catbird, small and grey, said. "You will hear five or six different bird calls that he repeats." Hughes

Few birds could be seen in the marsh. The bright sun contrasted with the forest shade, combining with the humid air above the wet floor to create the impression of an almost tropical setting.

Bird watching takes patience

"They're probably being sensible and not moving around," Hughes said. Like the more sensible higher life forms, the birds avoid activity in the heat of sunlight.

The best bird watching, Hughes said, is early in the morning, about 5:30 or 6 a.m. at this time of year. Groups should be kept small and two or three is best, she said.

"You have to sit down and wait," Hughes said. Rather than wandering through the woods, she said, it is best to find a spot to sit and wait for half an hour. That way, far more birds will probably be seen, she said.

Talking, except high pitched voices, does not bother birds, Hughes said, but quick movements scare them.

"I've always been interested in birds," Hughes said. "I think everybody is." She is doing research on birds for the park service, gathering basic data on birds while banding then year 'round.

The Raccoon Ridge Observatory was the third to be started of five now in operation in the United States, Hughes said. The practice of bird banding originated in Europe along migratory routes, she said.

The data collected on birds is used to indicate environmental change, Hughes said. The birds are examined for parasites, diseases and disabilities, such as broken legs or wings. All of the work is done by volunteers and is subsidized by donations, she said. To capture the birds, a fine netting is used. The birds fly into it, drop into a cavity, and remain until they are examined.

"We usually band the birds and release them immediately after we've weighed them and measured them," Hughes said. The observatory started researching birds about two years ago.

More than 1,000 birds were captured and banded at one two-acre area along Old Mine Road since February, Hughes said.

Tours of historic church offered in Carbon County

JIM THORPE — Tourists to the Carbon County area are once again welcome to tour beautiful St. Mark's Church on Race Street in Jim Thorpe.

St. Mark's Church is one of the oldest buildings in Jim Thorpe today. The present structure was built in 1869 and was the Protestant Episcopal church attended by Mauch Chunk's Asa Packer.

Tours will leave from the Jim Thorpe Railroad Museum and will be conducted between 1 and 4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and from noon to 4 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free, but donations to the church Poor Box will be accepted.

More information on the tour can be obtained by contacting the Carbon County Tourist Promotion Agency in Jim Thorpe.

Poconos looking ahead to Fall activities plans

STROUDSBURG — The four-county area of the Poconos; Carbon, Monroe, Pike and Wayne; is currently organizing plans for a series of special events in November and December of this year.

The Pocono Mountains are going to go Country-Western for approximately six weeks featuring name entertainment along with activities normally associated with the country-western mode. Visitors to the Poconos will be able to participate in such activities as hayrides, sing-alongs, corn husking contests, quilting bees, square dances, rodeos, etc., while donning country-western attire and maybe even becoming a "cowboy" for a day.

Robert Ugucioni, Executive Director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, states that "the Poconos are going to be the 'IN' place to visit this Fall. There will be something of interest for people of all ages."

Groups or individuals that are interested in participating in the "Pocono Hoe-Down" are encouraged to contact the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau. Please address your inquiries to Pocono Hoe-Down, Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Box D, 1004 Main St., Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania 18360.

Big deal

CHICAGO (UPI) — One of the largest reference book contracts in history has been signed by an encyclopedia publisher here.

The contract between Marshall Field, publisher of "World Book Encyclopedia," and the chairman of R.R. Donnelley and Sons Company covers printing and binding of both the United States and international editions of the encyclopedia from July, 1977, through 1987.

Hans Conried, Lou Jacobi to star in Playhouse finale

MOUNTAINHOME — What promises to be one of the funniest shows of this or any other season is offered in the final week (August 26-30) at the Rowena Stevens Pocono Playhouse, Mountainhome, with the arrival there of Neil Simon's recent Broadway smash-hit comedy, "The Sunshine Boys," starring two of the nation's most popular comedians, Hans Conried and Lou Jacobi.

"The Sunshine Boys" casts Conried and Jacobi as Lewis and Clark, (No, Mable, not the ones who went on the Expedition!) a famous vaudeville team, who, as the curtain goes up, have been in retirement for 11 years, during which time, cantankerously, neither has spoken to the other.

The fun begins when they get back on "speaking" terms, the occasion being their acceptance of an invitation from CBS to make a TV Special on the good old days of vaudeville.

For decades, American audiences screamed with laughter at a vaudeville act entitled "Dr. Kronkheit," put on by the famous top-bananas, Smith and Dale. In "The Sunshine Boys," Neil Simon lovingly imagines what might have happened to them after they decided to call it a day on their stage careers.

The result is convulsingly funny, including, incidentally, a "Dr. Kronkheit" act complete with beautiful and voluptuous Darlene Parks as the Sketch Nurse.

Hans Conried, who last had audiences in stitches at the Playhouse in "Generation" (1967), won acclaim last season on Broadway in the sensational musical, "Irene," in the hilarious role of Madame Lucy, the couturiere, and then toured the country in the same show supporting Debbie Reynolds and Jane Powell.

The star of well over 100 films, Conried, on TV, has also contributed to the nation's insomnia by appearing regularly on the Johnny Carson Show . . . which is only a smidgeon of his credits in that medium, where, for example, he has gladdened viewers' hearts as Uncle Toonoose on the Danny Thomas Show.

Lou Jacobi is repeating his Broadway role of Al Lewis in "The Sunshine Boys." Broadway audiences have also relished his talents in such hits as "Norman, Is That You?" "The Tenth Man," "The Diary of Anne Frank," another Simon hit, "Come Blow Your Horn," "Fade Out, Fade In," (co-starring with Carol Burnett) and "Don't Drink the Water." In films he was last seen in Woody Allen's "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Sex . . ." He is a national favorite from his TV appearances on the Dean Martin Show as the irascible Mr.

Kapotoulis.

"The Sunshine Boys," at the time of its Broadway run, was comedy-master Neil Simon's 12th-in-a-row hit, and in the opinion of many New York critics "probably Mr. Simon's best play yet." So said Clive Barnes of the New York Times, who also called it "ex-travagantly funny . . . This is a super, clever, and, "He stressed," a very humane comedy.

Fudge addicts have big supply

MOUNTAINHOME — For 16 seasons, Clyde Reid has been making old fashioned fudge for Pocono vacationers. And before that, Reid had been making candy since 1945.

Open seven days a week, Reid's Pocono Mountain Fudge House always has eight varieties of fudge available. It is made up fresh each morning.

When Reid started his Mountainhome business, he made candy too but he had to cut it out after the first year because he could not keep up with the fudge business. Its popularity persisted.

"I have people who have been coming back here every year for 16 years," Reid said. At the end of each season, Reid said, fudge addicts come to buy "20 or 25 pounds" of fudge to take home for freezing.

Reid has a special freezer wrap that keeps the fudge fresh, he said. It keeps the fudge freaks supplied through the winter as the shop closes down from Thanksgiving through March.

Reid started as a candy makers' apprentice and worked his way up to being general manager of a candy company with eight factories and 12 stores before he quit to start his own business. Now, he is teaching the trade to his son, Robert, 18.

In 1970, Reid started an entirely different business that adjoins the fudge outlet — the Pocono Pancake House. He serves all kinds, from blueberry to bacon pancakes. Maple, strawberry and blueberry syrups are made daily, Reid said.

Kettles of fudge are poured each morning, starting at about 7:30, and the last batch is usually finished about 11 a.m. The public is welcome to watch, Reid said.

Flea markets can be treasure hunter's dream

By JOE RATTMAN

Pocono Record Reporter

BUSHKILL — Evelyn Smith has been going to auctions for 40 years and for a long time she carted home what she liked. Austin Thibault collected glass and china for a few years at auctions.

Both are now selling the things they picked up at the M&S Flea Market on Rte. 209 in Bushkill.

At M&S and at the other small flea markets in the Poconos that have proliferated during the last few years, dealers of everything from art glass to woodenware turn out crowds of collectors, bargain hunters and lookers each warm weather weekend.

"You can get items from little junky items to beautiful old antiques," said Ruth Goldstein, a dealer from Mountainhome. For most of the dealers, setting up the weekend flea tables is a hobby, means to extra money and a social function.

As Thibault explained it, "There's almost a collector for everything you can think of." Some of those collectors eventually have to get rid of some of their collections.

"When I first bought things, I bought what I like," Smith said. For her, a shop would be "too confining" so loading up her car with some tablefuls of smaller items a few days a week is the answer.

Flea markets are usually either outdoors with several dealers set up on folding tables or the tailgates of their vehicles or the vendors are tightly packed into big indoor rooms. Neither arrangement is convenient for selling large pieces of furniture so most dealers specialize in small items such as jewelry.

"You have people interested in everything — old toys, campaign buttons," Smith said. Old jewelry is most popular, she said.

Learning about the value of all the old stuff — some of its antique but much of it too young for that description — requires a lot of time. Smith reads a lot of library books on antiques, she said, and may hang on to an item for years before selling it.

"As years go on, it's a good investment," she said. Smith relaxed in the sunshine behind her table, which was filled with dishes, glassware, old jewelry and pipes. Most of her wares are antiques.

"I love to go to the sales but we don't go much anymore because I always see things I want and buy things I don't need," Smith said. Prices at auctions are much higher these days, she said.

"That means the flea markets have to have high prices too and that's a problem," Smith said. Still, many bargains can be found because the prices start low and generally do not range as widely as the selection of merchandise.

You could easily spend a day exploring flea markets. The problem is to separate the gems from the junk.

"There's a lot of big dealers that come through here," Thibault said. "The average person doesn't know his stuff," but, he added, the big dealers know theirs.

"Some of the old pieces that people throw away are worth a fortune," Thibault said. He used to hate antiques but now he sells "a little bit of everything" and plans to open a shop in about another year.

"Eventually you go on and accumulate too much stuff and you have to get rid of it," he said. So the flea markets are a kind of old fashioned farmer's market for collectors whose holdings grow too big.

The Inn at Tannersville has expanded on the idea with what they call the "American Marketplace." They have two dozen week-long vendors who sell the usual flea items but also produce, new men's and women's clothes, pottery and leather.

The marketplace is open daily except Mondays. Different flea market dealers float in from weekend to weekend and as many as 50 may be set up on the lawn at once.

Nearby, on the opposite side of Rte. 611, the Little Merchants Antique and Flea Market operates under shade trees next to a trickling stream and in a barn-like basement garage with stone walls and a beamed ceiling.

Dealers there sell used books, glassware, folk art, 15-year old Esquires and Playboys as an old Wurlitzer juke box plays 78s.

Elsewhere, a dozen flea markets are held throughout the area during the summer by community groups and non-profit organizations. In Milford and Delaware Water Gap, new flea markets opened this summer.

Angelo's Flea Market is on Rtes. 6 and 209 in Milford.

The Delaware Water Gap Flea Market is setting up weekends through mid October in a field between the Hickory Valley Farm Restaurant and the Delaware Water Gap Indian Trading Post on Rte. 611.

The Maple Lawn Inn, a home for artists, writers and musicians in Cresco, has been having weekend flea markets occasionally and plans to have them regularly next year.

The Poconos does not have huge flea markets like the 250-or-so-booth Shupps Grove flea market at Adamstown but small ones are springing up in the area. The collectors need outlets and consumers, pressed by inflation and recession, are hunting down bargains where they can. For both, the flea markets offer summertime fun. Before them, the tables are loaded with treasures and junk.

Foreign trade

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The Central Bureau of Statistics announced the value of Holland's foreign trade, excluding Belgium and Luxembourg, last year totaled 76,155 million guilders $30,462 million as to exports, and 75,630 million guilders $30,252 million as to imports. The respective 1973 figures were 57,185 million guilders $22,874 million and 56,797 million guilders $22,716 million.

Morning best time to make fudge

"The morning is the best time to make candy because of the temperature," his son said. "The afternoon is much too hot and the evening is much too damp."

"Therefore," he said, "for the best flavor, the ideal time is the morning."

The Reids start with cream, sugar, cocoa and other ingredients that they mix in large copper kettles and cook over a gas fire. The thick, brown mixture is poured into aluminum tins while it is hot. Gradually it hardens as it cools for two and a half hours and readies for sale in the early afternoon.

"We give some afternoon candy demonstrations," the younger Reid said, "again, providing the weather is right."

"Dampness tends to make candy sugary instead of having a nice smooth consistency," he said, "and the heat not only kills the workers but it also keeps the candy from setting properly."

The heat also causes the fudge to "sweat," he said. A hundred pounds of fudge can be made in each kettle.

"Because of the size of the fudge business, that's all we have time to make," Reid said. "There's just too much to try to keep ahead of the fudge and do everything else."

Over the years Reid said, he has not altered the fudge recipe, "no matter how much ingredients, no matter how much sugar costs."

The fudge is sweet and rich and it tempts vacationers to forget about weight control along with thoughts about job and home worries. "Ninety per cent of them, when they come on vacation, forget any diet they are on," Reid said.

Pocono honeymooners often have the fudge house mail fudge to their bridal party, Reid said. Sending fudge to the folks back home "has been a major part of our business," he said.

The fudge gets sent to family, friends and baby-sitters. One woman came in, Reid said, and had fudge sent to her parakeet sitter.

Ski areas not idle even though slopes are still green

STROUDSBURG — The last flake of snow has barely melted from Pocono ski slopes before preparations begin for the next ski season. And the snow may be deliberately melted to get ready for warm weather activities.

In some cases the trails abruptly turn from white to green as they are converted from ski slopes to golf fairways. There is routine maintenance of the trails and lifts and improvements to be made before the cold weather and snow return.

When it does, there will be a new ski area that will have the second largest vertical drop in the area.

Shawnee Ski Area near Shawnee-on-Delaware will open this winter with two double chair lifts, some trails more than a mile long and a top of the mountain ski lodge.

"It's part of our total complex in Shawnee Village," said Karl Hope, Shawnee's developer. The area is under construction and plans call for completion in time for a December 15 opening, he said.

Shawnee will be public. It will have complete snowmaking and a ski school, Hope said. The area will have several trails and open slopes, faces northward and will have an entrance on Mosier's Knob Road, he said.

Elsewhere, snowmaking is being expanded at Camelback and Tanglwood. Camelback is adding air compressors and installing pipe to the second side of some trails, said Joe Amato, assistant manager.

At Tanglwood, where the ski lodge becomes a playhouse for the summer months, snowmaking is being added on some areas not previously covered, including on the "Weisal," a trail on the left side of the area, said Art Avery, manager.

Construction of townhouses for the "Village at Camelback" began recently and about 20 units are due to be finished January 1, Amato said.

Sno-hill at Lake Como becomes a family resort and the chair lift stays running for scenic rides. The area just finished building a new gift shop.

Tanglwood offers a chair lift ride on weekends and by reservation for groups during the week. No decision has been made at Camelback whether to open the chair for the fall foliage ride, Amato said, but a spokesman for Big Boulder and Jack Frost said fall chairlift rides will be offered on weekends at both areas.

The fall foliage rides will start the second weekend in September at Jack Frost and the following weekend at Big Boulder, said Ken English, group activities director for both areas. The lifts will shut down the last weekend in October, he said.

The ski lodge at Jack Frost is being expanded and the kitchen at Big Boulder is being enlarged and modernized. English said.

Fernwood is adding another small beginner's area, said Mel Law, area manager and ski school director. The area will emphasize learning to ski more next season, he said, and a special week-long ski package is planned in which Fernwood will guarantee that participants can parallel ski at the end of the week.

Pocono Manor recently replaced a rope tow with a T-bar and crown vetch is being grown on the slopes to provide a better cushion than straw, said James Ireland, manager. Several other areas are regrading and grooming trails.

This summer, Pocono Manor started offering 20-minute rides around the slopes and grounds in 3-wheel dune cycles. The giant tricycle with big balloon-type tires cruises at 20 to 25 miles per hour on land or snow.

At Buck Hill the Poma lift is taken down for the summer and, like Fernwood and Tamiment, the area becomes a golf course.

Tamiment's main slope is now being used as the number one fairway of their PGA championship course. Golfers are out just two or three weeks after skiing ends.

As soon as skiing closes, workmen hose greens on the slope with water to wash away the snow and prevent ice from forming and smothering the grass.

Last winter, Tamiment's ski season could have been longer but the area stopped making snow weeks early so that the golf course could open by the first day of spring, according to Jack Mortland, chief snow-maker and golf course superintendent.

A new golf course is being constructed at Mount Airy and the area plans to add a second chair lift. "We will put one (chairlift) in and we will try to put it in this year," said Ron Logan, manager.

If the second chair is added, new slopes and trails will probably be added too, Logan said. In the meantime, some of the other Pocono ski areas are planning fall events.

Big Boulder and Tanglwood are planning Octoberfests. Tanglwood's is planned for the last weekend in September and the first two weekends of October but the dates for Big Boulder's have not been set.

Jack Frost, which expects to open skiing on Thanksgiving, is planning an arts and crafts show on Columbus Day weekend. At the third annual event, 30 craftsmen are expected to

As the ski season approaches, representatives of major ski clothing manufacturers will show the new garb at Jack Frost on November 2. By then, the "Think Snow" bumper stickers should start appearing.

Appalachian Trail — 2,000 miles for hikers

By JOE RATTMAN

POCONO RECORD REPORTER DELAWARE WATER GAP

— Slowly and wearily, hikers walk over the countless rocks that protrude from the trail onto the washed-out gravel road and past Lake Lenape to Mountain Road.

It is a downhill walk into the village of Delaware Water Gap, the trail marked with blazes of white paint on the trees, descending from Mount Minsi along cliffs where Indians looked out over the Delaware River for centuries.

The hikers are following the Appalachian Trail, a rugged path stretching through wilderness over mountains, along ridges and highways and through towns for 2,000 miles from Mount Springer, Georgia to Mount Katahdin, Maine.

They are a familiar sight to local residents at nearly all times of the year when snow and ice do not obstruct their path, walking with heavily loaded packs often brightly colored, traveling alone or in small groups.

Their heavy boots are worn, their faces tanned and their beards untrimmed. The packs they carry are lighter than the usual 40 or 50 pounds the packs weigh when loaded for the next trip into the woods.

It is an unusual group that comes through, the full distance hikers, numbering between 50 and 100 each year. The weekend and day hikers are much more numerous. All of them are seeing much more of nature than the highway travelers. They can see hundreds of feet below the trail speeding through the gap on I-80.

For miles, the famed trail follows the rounded Kittatinny Mountains ridges through the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, only entering civilization in the park at Delaware Water Gap and near Millbrook village in New Jersey.

So when the long distance hikers reach Delaware Water Gap, it is like finding an oasis. It is a place to rent a cheap room for one night, to be able to get a soft bed and a shower, to get a meal cooked from refrigerated foods, and to telephone or write home.

Last month, the clerks at the post office looked forward to seeing one or two hikers daily arriving from Georgia. July is the month they are seen most frequently, but now, some hikers are coming through from the opposite direction.

The hikers anticipate receiving packages as they approach the village, often 15 pounds of food to last a week along with letters and trail guides sent from home. They transfer the package contents into their backpacks.

Often, the boxes are re-packed with things no longer needed to be sent home, such as guides to sections of the trail already completed.

"They pack up those boxes with dirty clothes and send them home," said Joan Kaiser, postal clerk. The cartons frequently await the hikers at the post office for several weeks.

The boxes come marked "through hiker" and are addressed to him in care of general delivery. They are held for the hikers longer than the 15 days most mail is kept.

Sometimes hikers pass through town before their mail arrives and others drop out from the trek before reaching the gap. "If they don't show up by November, we send it back," Kaiser said.

The post office at Delaware Water Gap, one of the closest to the trail over its entire length, started keeping a register for hikers during 1973. The register allows hikers to keep track of where other hikers are, at least telling them if and when they passed through Delaware Water Gap.

The hikers usually make several other stops in the village too, picking up staples at Heitler's Store, camping gear, such as dried foods, at the Pack Shack, and a milk shake at the Green Lantern Coffee Shop or some pizza at Omega Natural Foods, which is the first store hikers see when they walk down off Mount Minsi into town. Some of them sleep on Omega's back porch when a rainstorm hits.

Walking under the bright sun in the summer heat and humidity, the hikers often have ice cream and other cold refreshments on their minds.

"They like to get some real food when they hit town," said Lucy Kosmerl, who runs the Green Lantern with her husband Sam. "On a hot day like this, a lot of them come in for milk shakes."

"Most of them like this town," she said. "They congregate here and at the post office." The hikers are not viewed by townspeople as being offensive.

Last July 4, Kosmerl said, a dozen hikers passed through the same day. Her own daughter, Cindy, hiked most of the trail last summer. The Gap is approximately the half way point of the trail, she noted.

When they come in, the young and lean, mostly college-age hikers are in good spirits, Kosmerl said. Some of them are older, and Kosmerl recalled one 60-year-old man hiking from Georgia to Maine who stopped in earlier this year.

Pennsylvania has rockiest part of Appalachian Trail

Four young men bound for Maine who had been hiking together for several days arrived in town one warm evening. After finding a room for the night at the Hof Brau Hotel, they settled down to write letters, read and call home.

"Everybody was really friendly today," said Arthur Knowlton, 28, of Booth Bay Harbor, Me.

"That's one of the best things about the trail — all of the people you meet," interrupted his friend, Richard Raid, 19, of Erie.

"I think that everybody tries to make it different than city life," Knowlton added.

The four had been traveling with the sun, getting up early and going to bed at dusk after averaging about 20 miles each day.

About the most recent part of the trail they traveled, they reported seeing several types of wildlife and, since the trail followed the top of a ridge from Wind Gap to Delaware Water Gap, there were several lookouts from which they could see the farms in the valleys below and wooded hills before the mountainous horizon miles away.

Grouse, deer, turtles, rabbits and other game were sighted but the thing they remembered liking the most was the view of the Delaware Water Gap and the entire Delaware Valley from the old Delaware Water Gap fire tower, which is scheduled to be torn down.

From the 1480-foot-high lookout passed by the trail, it is possible to see for several miles in all directions from the mountain, which looms more than 1,000 feet above the river.

During the rocky descent of the trail from the fire tower to the village, sunlight is nearly blocked out in places by rhododendron that forms a natural tunnel of greenery.

"I usually think of an oasis when I see them (rhododendron bushes)," Raid said. They usually indicate that water is near, he said.

"There are so many rocks in Pennsylvania it just kills your feet," said David Bessey, 17, of Waterville, Me., reflecting on his most recent days on the trail.

"All of the northern part of Pennsylvania has been really, really rocky — the rockiest section of the whole Appalachian Trail. That's what everybody who has done the whole trail said," Bessey said.

Richard Prager, 19, of Marblehead, Mass. took time out from writing in his diary to say that the local section of the trail he hiked that day was one of the nicest parts of the trail he had hiked recently.

Prager carried a nine-rattle tail of a rattlesnake with him. He killed and ate the snake several days earlier in Caladonia State Park.

During the hike of several hundred miles through remote areas, backpackers see few people. But when they do meet someone, it is often a person with similar interests and someone who loves the outdoors. Hikers said that the people they met often knew a lot about the forest, animals and birds.

To hike for several days without coming into a town like Delaware Water Gap means being cut off from the world. The weight of a pack is watched too closely to allow such luxuries as a portable radio to be included among the few belongings carried along.

Hikers that reach the gap from Georgia usually have been on the trail at least three months. They report that they completely lose track of the news of the outside world as their attention is diverted by very localized and individual concerns.

"The first 1,000 miles, you are thinking how many miles you went," Raid said. "Now you think of how many miles you have to go."

Several side trails branch off from the Appalachian Trail, which is marked with rectangular blazes painted in white, two inches by six inches, on trees and rocks.

One blaze indicates that the trail continues straight beyond the blaze. Two blazes, one above the other, indicates that the trail is changing direction.

The location of each blaze is selected so that the next blaze can be seen from the first one. Thus, it is generally easy to follow the trail for long distances without getting lost.

At places where the trail crosses major roadways in Pennsylvania, large rustic signs have been erected.

In Delaware Water Gap, the trail crosses the toll bridge over the Delaware. On each side of the river, it climbs abruptly into the mountains.

To begin hiking southward from Delaware Water Gap, locate the trail blazes on the telephone poles where the trail crosses Rte. 611 in front of the Deerhead Inn and Omega Natural Foods.

The uphill climb is steep in places but the two hour walk to the summit and fire tower is worth it. Several lookouts permit magnificent views of the Delaware Water Gap from different vantage points.

About two thirds the way to the top, many people can see the profile of an Indian in the rocks on the New Jersey side of the gap. The trees and shrubs to the left of the rock profile form the headdress.

At most times of the year, there is little water along the way, so it is advisable to bring along a canteen. Also, wear comfortable shoes and casual clothing.

Overnight hikers should park their cars at Resort Point Overlook, a parking area under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service located about a quarter mile south of the village on Rte. 611. A trail connecting with the Appalachian Trail begins directly across the road from the parking lot.

On the New Jersey side of the river, overnight hikers may park at the Kittatinny Point Information Center of the park, which the trail passes just after it crosses the toll bridge, or at the Dunfield Hiking Area parking lot.

Guide books to either the Pennsylvania or the New Jersey-New York sections of the trail are sold at Kittatinny Point or at the Pack Shack, located on Rte. 611 a few blocks north of its intersection with the trail.

Heading southward from the gap, it is 15.8 miles to Wind Gap, the next town. About one-third the way there, the trail passes through Kirkridge, where there is a shelter and drinking water available.

Just beyond Kirkridge, the trail crosses Rte. 191 about half way between Stroudsburg and Bangor.

South of Delaware Water Gap, camping is permitted all along the trail but hikers should not wander far off the trail to set up camp because much of the mountainside land is used as watershed for the village.

Heading north in New Jersey, beginning at Dunfield Hiking

Area, the trail climbs Mount Tammany slowly at first, paralleling Dunfield Creek for about six tenths of one mile. Along the entire length of the creek, camping is prohibited.

A trail marked with blue blazes branches off the Appalachian Trail and leads to the summit of the mountain near the point of the gap. It goes to ledges that are fantastic overlooks above the river.

Sunfish Pond — popular destination of weekend hike

But hikers who stay on the Appalachian Trail and continue climbing to the top of the ridge, following the trail about four miles, reach Sunfish Pond, a beautiful natural glacial lake.

The pond is a popular destination of weekend hikers and was a favorite camping spot for several years. It became overcrowded, resulting in several problems such as litter and destruction of trees.

Camping within a mile of the pond was prohibited a few years ago and rangers from Worthington State Forest began regular patrols of the area.

Presently, there is no camping, swimming or boating permitted at the pond, said Arthur Stevenson, ranger in charge of Worthington State Forest. The state forest is 5,700 acres of rugged terrain that includes the mountainous New Jersey side of the Delaware from the gap to an area north of Tocks Island.

Rangers fine persons found camping, picnicking, or with camp fires anywhere along Dunfield Creek or around Sunfish Pond. The fine ranges from $25 to $200, Stevenson said.

Camping along the trail between Kittatinny Point and Sunfish Pond is permitted for one night only at two posted sites, Stevenson said. Problems with litter lessened after the restrictions were implemented, he said.

Scout groups and state forest maintenance men regularly clean up the area, Stevenson said.

Busloads of scouts and hiking groups come to the area on weekends. Also, small groups of hikers come with two cars so that one can be left at the final destination to be used to get back to the starting point, where the second car is left.

Long distance hikers heading north have their mail forwarded to them at Unionville, N.Y., which is 51 miles north on the trail from Delaware Water Gap.

Hikers are able to plan for stops to pick up mail and supplies by using the trail guides prepared and updated by the Appalachian Trail Conference, a confederation of hiking groups that maintains the trail and assists hikers.

Information about the trail is available by writing to: Appalachian Trail Conference, Box 236, Harper's Ferry, W.V. 25425.

Hikers with heavy packs move along the Appalachian Trail

Located in state forests, game lands

Poconos has many hiking trails

STROUDSBURG — Aside from the Appalachian Trail, hiking trails are maintained in the Poconos on state forest lands, on state game lands, in recreation areas and in parks.

Near the Appalachian Trail in the Worthington State Forest and the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, a trail marked with blue blazes climbs Mount Tammany to the summit of the New Jersey side of the Delaware Water Gap from the Dunfield Hiking Area.

Dunfield is located on the north side of I-80 just east of the Kittatinny Point Information Center. The blue blaze trail is steep and rocky but there are excellent views of the whole valley from the top.

An old log trail branches off the blue blaze trail and leads to the headwaters of Dunfield Creek. It ends at a marsh called "Old Beaver Pond." Halfway there, another trail leads up hill to the left and rejoins the Appalachian Trail.

To get to Sunfish Pond, there are faster trails than the four-mile Appalachian Trail, but the climb is steeper. One way is to follow a fire lane that zig-zags up the side of the mountain after it starts from two places at Worthington State Forest Campground.

The campground is about three miles north of the Delaware Water Gap toll bridge on Old Mine Road. Near the other two starting points, a stream runs through the mountainside rocks and crosses Old Mine Road. The stream empties from Sunfish Pond.

Following the stream bed straight up the mountainside is the most direct route to the pond.

Several trails are marked in Promised Land State Park. It is the most developed hiking area in the Poconos aside from the Appalachian Trail and has more than 15 miles of trails.

Maps of the trails which are categorized as easy, moderate and strenuous are available at the park office. There is an easy nature trail on Conservation Island. The one and a half mile trail loops around the island, which is in Promised Land Lake.

Promised Land State Park is on Rte. 390 a few miles north-east of Canadensis. A park road crosses a bridge on to Conservation Island.

Moderately difficult, the three mile Bruce Lake Trail starts on Rte. 390 south of I-84 and passes through a forest to the Bruce Lake Natural Area of the park.

From a nearby spot on Rte. 390, the Egypt Meadow Trail goes one half mile to Egypt Meadow Lake. Another moderately difficult trail starts at the rental cabins in the park and goes one and a half miles to Bear Wallow Lake.

One of the more strenuous trails goes five miles from Promised Land Lake to Bruce Lake. A second trail starts at Promised Land Lake and joins the first trail after two miles.

From the park office on Rte. 390, the Burley Inlet Trail goes one and a half miles to the Burley Inlet on Promised Land Lake.

"These trails are for hiking only. We don't allow trail bikes or anything else on them," said Sanford Shelton, park superintendent.

Big Pocono State Park has about ten miles of hiking trails. The trails starting points are marked North Trail, South Trail and Indian Rock Trail. Hikers can follow the Indian Rock Trail along a cliff, down the mountainside, with good views along the way, to an abandoned railroad bed that leads to I-80 near Tannersville at the Baggy Pants bar.

To get to Big Pocono, take exit 45 from I-80. Just before the park entrance, there is a small parking area where a two mile trail to Deep Lake begins.

The Deep Lake Trail passes through state game lands. Game lands in the Poconos have numerous unmarked trails that frequently are 19th century logging roads. Similar trails cut through state forest lands. They are not recommended to persons completely unfamiliar with the area.

The District Forestry Office at 447 Clearview Lane a block off Rte. 191 near Clearview Elementary School in Stroudsburg has maps available that show the trails through area state forests.

Two short loop trails are the only state forest trails marked with blazes. They are nature trails in Tarkill Forest reached from Rte. 402 north of Peck's Pond. Along the six-tenth mile and two-tenth mile loops, trees are marked with their names, ages and other types of information.

Tobyhanna State Park has one trail, called Lakeside Trail, that is about three quarters of a mile long. The park is reached from exit 2 of I-80.

At the Francis E. Walter Dam project of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, entered from Rte. 940 just east of exit 42 of I-80, a trail starts from the smaller of two picnic areas.

The trail descends a hillside and ends at a gauging station along the Lehigh River. The trail is three miles long and follows the bank of the river for part of the distance.

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI . . .

Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijsttafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selectail," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Rice-Table buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

BRAND NEW!
COUNTRY STORE AND MUSEUM

A bit of yesteryear has come to life at Wyckoff's in what was once a livery stable. Wyckoff's has faithfully and professionally created a General Store with all of its charm and authenticity. And old post office, patent medicine counter, pot belly stove and the hundreds of other items in the country store museum are a reminder that the community centered in the country store. Everyone is cordially invited to visit the old store at no charge. It seems to say, "Come in and imagine yourself as a shopkeeper, postmaster, shopper or loafer in the pre-macadam days. Hitch up and drive in at your leisure.

needs on our lower level. You'll find exotic one-of-a-kind gifts in our unique Around-the-World Gift Center. Enjoy a break in your shopping with a snack in our tearoom or at the fountain. You'll find fashions for the whole family on our main and second floors. Wyckoff's is truly a shopper's delight and brimming with special excitement this year. Come see us soon.

BRAND NEW!
PLAZA SHOP HOME CENTER

Our Plaza Shop, with entrances on Sixth Street and Quaker Plaza, has been completely transformed into a beautiful Home Furnishing Center with many departments from our Lower Level and many brand new departments. You'll find the best in redwood and wrought iron outdoor furniture, unpainted furniture, lamps, major appliances, draperies, stereos, cameras and a snack counter where you can have a delicious sandwich and a cold drink or an ice cream cone that still only costs 10¢. Wyckoff's expresses its confidence in the continued development of the Poconos by expanding into a new home center to better serve the needs of our customers. Visit us today!
